

Prospective bridegroom Michael Ignatew, 22, walked with the shuffle of a 1-man chain gang when he applied for a marriage license in Milwaukee Monday. Co-workers slipped the ball and chain on his ankle and locked it when he arrived for work. He'll be married Saturday.

Men Will be Replaced; Four Vice Presidents Will Form New Agency

A split in the top officer echelon of The Brady company, Appleton advertising agency, and plans to form a new advertising-public relations agency in Appleton were announced today.

Four of the five officers of the firm resigned and the resignations have been accepted by Richard H. Brady, president and treasurer, who said negotiations for replacements are underway.

New Agency

Principals of the new firm, are Robert V. O'Brien, Jr., Elmer A. Otte, Gordon D. Fisher and Richard M. Baker. At the Brady company, O'Brien was executive vice president, member of the 3-man board of directors and account group supervisors. Otte was vice president and account group supervisor. Fisher was vice president and senior art director. Baker was vice president and director of publicity and public relations division.

The four men had combined service with the Brady company of 33 years. O'Brien had been with the company 13 years.

Plans to Expand

Brady said: "Our plans for continued expansion require the services of marketing professionals with practical first-hand experience in wholesale-retail distribution. I expect to announce new appointments shortly."

Brady announced at noon today the appointment of E. Patrick Toal, a native of New York, as a vice president and director of Brady company. Toal, now a marketing consultant, has been national sales manager of General Electric radio and TV, executive sales director for Hotpoint, and vice president of marketing for International Telephone and Telegraph, Capehart division.

O'Brien stated: "We four officers have resigned because of irreconcilable differences of opinion over advertising attitudes and philosophy. It is no longer possible to continue."

U.S. Asks Writ in Pittsburgh Court to Halt Steel Walkout

Income Tax Boost Best, Nelson Says

Von Braun Asks Fair Conditions For Scientists

Will Not Resign Because of Switch To Another Agency

Washington —(AP)—Wernher von Braun said today he had no present intention of resigning from the nation's missile and space program if his group of army-sponsored scientists is shifted to another government agency.

But Von Braun, chief scientist at the army's ballistic missile agency at Huntsville, Ala., told a news conference he might resign if "a pleasant environment" and challenging space work are not given to him and his scientists after any such transfer.

President Eisenhower is considering whether Von Braun's group should remain under the army or be transferred to the air force or the national aeronautics and space administration, the civilian space agency.

Wants Good Conditions

Von Braun said he was sure the president's decision would be "in the best interest of the nation."

But he said "even a wise decision made in the best interests of the nation could ultimately backfire" if the agency selected did not provide proper conditions for his scientists.

"Situations arise that can create crises," he said. "Suppose for example, someone should decide to cancel the Saturn program."

The Saturn program is one aimed at producing a rocket with 1½ million pounds of thrust capable of putting huge payloads into space.

Von Braun summed up his attitude by saying: "My position is this: The president is deciding this matter and when the decision is made, he will be just as cooperative as we have always been. We'll try to make it a go. And we are convinced that it can be made to go."

Hasn't Made Up Mind on Specific Proposal, but Will Veto Sales Tax, He Asserts

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Gov. Gaylord Nelson said Monday he will recommend to the November legislature a boost in state income taxes to meet a $30 million deficit expected for the 1960-61 budget.

He was emphatic about prospects for a sales tax: "I'd veto a sales tax or any off-the-cuff tax revision."

The governor said he hasn't made up his mind about recommending a withholding system for income tax collection, but said, "I'm inclined that way."

If he again recommends the withholding system, Nelson said he will have to have some alternate proposals for the legislature. These would, he said, generally broaden the base of the income tax.

Shouldn't Await Report

Nelson dismissed any chance that the fall session could come up with a tax revision proposal based on the work of his blue-ribbon study committee. Some committee members last week said the group could have some suggestions or at least a progress report by Nov. 1. The legislature reconvenes Nov. 3.

"I don't think the legislature should wait for a report from this committee," said the governor. "The whole purpose of the committee is careful, scientific tax revision."

The impact of any new taxes and their effect on municipalities would have to be established as well as the revenue they would produce, Nelson added.

"I think," he explained, "that any revision proposal which amounts to anything must have time to be understood. Business groups, labor groups, school groups, municipal groups are going to want to study it. Newspapers are going to want to write editorials about it. Legislators are going to want to study it and talk to their constituents about it. Then, out of it all jells public acceptance and you are willing to move. You can't do that in a hurry."

Outlaw Hazing At Stanford

Stanford, Calif. —(AP)—Stanford university's inter-fraternity council last night outlawed hazing.

It passed a resolution "To outlaw all forms of fraternity hazing and hazing in contradiction with the California state law, Stanford university policies or basic human rights."

George Ingham, council president, said "We hope with the passing of this resolution that any future recurrence of the unfortunate incidents which have occurred on other campuses will be avoided at Stanford."

Awaits Further Word

"Mr. Rand talked with Bob and if he tells me Bob really wants to stay there with someone else, I'll believe it. If he says he is sick, I'll believe that too," said Mrs. Webster.

Rupert King of Cleveland, one of Webster's associates in the Moscow exhibition, said "he had a girl friend. Her name was Vera and we met her in a restaurant where she was a waitress."

Mrs. Webster said her husband "wasn't the cloak and dagger type so I can't imagine him involved in any foreign intrigue."

She said she had been mulling over some of the remarks Webster made while he made a trip home in July, "and many things take a new meaning in light of what has happened."

When he returned to Russia he took back nylon hose, some records by Ella Fitzgerald and an anthology of American humor.

"He told me they were for a 'professor at Moscow university. I thought it perfectly natural at the time," she said.

Truman in Tribute To Former Soldier, Cabinet Member

Washington —(AP)—Muffled drums tap out a soldier's farewell today for Gen. George C. Marshall.

President Eisenhower and former President Harry S. Truman were to attend funeral services at the Ft. Myer, Va., chapel for the 5-star general of the army.

Marshall died Friday night at 78 after a long illness.

The general had served as army chief of staff during World War II and later as secretary of state and secretary of defense. He was author of the Marshall plan which helped war-weakened Europe along the road to economic recovery.

The body of the soldier-statesman rested in Bethlehem chapel of the Washington National (Episcopal) cathedral until time for the services at Ft. Myer, just across the Potomac river from Washington.

Simple Services

A simple funeral was planned in accordance with Marshall's wishes. Arrangements included army band music as the procession entered and left the army chapel, the chapel service conducted by Canon Luther D. Miller of Washington cathedral restricted to 200 persons, graveside services restricted to members of the family and pallbearers, burial in Arlington National cemetery on a slope below the tomb of the unknowns.

Former President Truman in an emotional, soft-voiced eulogy to an old friend today called Gen. George C. Marshall the greatest man of our time.

Truman spoke reverently of his former secretary of state and of defense in a talk filmed for television several hours before Marshall's funeral.

"He was the greatest general since Robert E. Lee," Truman said.

"He was the greatest administrator since Thomas Jefferson."

"He was the man of honor, the man of truth, the man of greatest ability."

"He was the greatest of the great in our time."

Ike Tells Attorney General To Have Mills Reopen for 80-Day Cooling Off Period

BY JOHN MOODY

Pittsburgh—(AP)—The government today filed a petition for a federal court injunction to halt the 98-day steel strike. Immediately afterward, the striking United Steelworkers asked the court not to issue a Taft-Hartley law injunction.

The government's petition said continuation of the nationwide labor dispute would "imperil the national health and safety."

Sorg

On the other hand, the union petition filed by Atty. Ernest G. Nassar argued that the strike does not now endanger the nation's economy as interpreted under the Taft-Hartley law.

Nearly an hour after the government petition was filed, U. S. Dist. Judge Herbert P. Sorg was still studying it. He was expected to hold a hearing later this afternoon.

U. S. Atty. Hubert I. Teitelbaum of Pittsburgh filed the bulky government petition. It was brought here by George C. Doub, assistant attorney general who flew from Washington.

United Steelworkers President David J. McDonald said the union's general counsel, Arthur J. Goldberg, will appear in court to appeal the government's petition for an injunction.

Union Group to Meet

Goldberg said he will argue that the provisions of the Taft-Hartley act which have been invoked are unconstitutional. He said he also will argue that the strike does not imperil the national health or safety within the meaning of the Taft-Hartley act.

McDonald said the union's decision making 170-member wage policy committee has been called to meet in Pittsburgh tomorrow at 10 a. m.

Laos Complaints Bring Talk About Shakeup in Aid

Washington —(AP)—Complaints from Laos that the United States is stingy in doling out aid funds brought a proposal today for a shakeup in the foreign aid program.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, assistant Democratic leader and a member of the senate foreign relations committee, made the suggestion. He said the international cooperation administration "is to be commended for attempting to maintain close control over American funds" in Laos.

"It is time for a shakeup in the whole aid program and a reassessment of its value," Mansfield said.

Wife Kills Former Roller Skating Champ After Heated Argument

Mineola, N.Y. —(AP)—Earl Van Horn, 62-year-old former roller skating champion was shot to death early today by his wife after a bitter argument in their home, police reported.

The wife, Jean, 35, is a one-time police victim whom Van Horn induced to take up skating as therapy for her paralysis. She not only overcame her physical difficulties but in time became a skating star herself.

Mrs. Van Horn was quoted as saying she and her husband had argued frequently over his late arrival home at night, often after a few drinks.

She told police another angry squabble ensued when he came in at 3 a. m. today after having been drinking. After more than two hours, she said, she grabbed a .410 gauge shotgun and pointed it at him.

Uses Gun in Attempt to Get Married

Elkton, Md. —(AP)—An application for a marriage license at the courthouse went smoothly until Clerk George

Worrell Mrs. Sailer

Elkery asked the prospective bridegroom:

"Now, will you raise your right hand and swear that the information in this license application is true?"

"I won't swear," replied Robert K. Worrell of Moorestown, N. J., "until she gets that gun out of her bag."

That touched off a commotion and Sheriff Edgar Startt wound up arresting Mrs. Angeline Sailer, 47, of Burlington, N. J.

The reluctant bridegroom, a 68-year-old retired seaman, told the sheriff Mrs. Sailer had come to his house with a gun yesterday and forced him to accompany her to Elkton to get married.

This city in northeastern Maryland is famed for its quickie marriages but state law now requires a 3-day waiting period.

Mrs. Sailer was held in $500 bond on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Soviets Again Jamming Radio

Resent Western Reports Regarding Langlelle Affair

Washington —(AP)—Washington monitors reported today the Russians apparently have turned on their radio jammers against the Voice of America's broadcasts of the Langlelle affair.

Russell A. Langlelle is the U. S. diplomat whom the reds kicked out of Russia last weekend, saying they caught him in spy work. The United States has denied the spy accusations.

Tass Aids Story

Langlelle, who had been top security officer at the American embassy in Moscow, is now on his way back to Washington with his family amid protests and counter-protests between the two capitals.

Soviet jamming of the Voice of America's Russian language programs stopped for the first time in a decade when Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev visited the United States last month. It has been sporadic since.

The story was published today for the first time in the Soviet Union, in a brief account by the Soviet news agency Tass. It briefly outlined the charges against Langlelle and made no mention of the U. S. version of the incident.

Castro Scornful of Economic 'Threat'

'We'll Go to Other Markets With Our Sugar,' He Promises in New Anti-American Speech in Havana

Havana —AP— Prime Minister Fidel Castro declared last night that the threat of "economic strangulation" from abroad is the least of Cuba's worries.

Striking again at one of his favorite targets, the United States, Castro said that if American reduces its Cuban sugar purchases, "this nation will seek other foreign markets."

In a speech to the Cuban bank workers union Castro also: Complained of U. S. opposition to his buying jet fighters from Britain:

Lashed out at Dominican Republic Dictator Rafael Trujillo;

Good Reserves

And once again cited the possibility of being assassinated. Castro said that if he is killed, "we have good reserves" to take over the government.

He mentioned his brother Raul, sworn in earlier in the day as head of the new ministry of armed forces, and Ernesto (Che) Guevara, a leader of the extreme leftist, anti-American wing of Castro's movement.

The speech contrasted sharply with the warm welcome the prime minister gave earlier to the American Society of Travel Agents, holding its annual convention here. He urged the group to forget "political propaganda" and go all out to promote tourism in Cuba.

Later, in an obvious refer-

French, Rebels Agree on Future Of Algeria

Two Still Must Agree on Method People Will Vote

Rabat, Morocco —AP— Algerian rebel leader Ferhat

Abbas said today France and the rebels now agree the Algerian people shall determine their future rulers but still must settle "the conditions through which our people will be called upon to choose in complete freedom."

Abbas, premier of the rebels' provisional government, said the French so far are trying to set all the rules for negotiations to end the 5-year-old rebellion.

"One cannot claim to be partisan to Democracy while keeping a monopoly on making the rules," he declared in an interview.

Biggest Stop

The biggest bar to the start of negotiations, said Abbas, is "the fact that certain French governing circles persist in being against any meeting or any form of negotiation."

French President Charles de Gaulle in a speech Sept. 16 offered the Algerian people a self-determination referendum to be held after peace is restored.

Abbas said the French recognition of Algeria's right to self-determination also admits the right of the United Nations to concern itself with Algerian problems.

U.N. Intervene

"We think the U.N. must intervene concretely to guarantee that right of self-determination if the French persist in refusing to negotiate the indispensable guarantees or, if these negotiations having taken place, both sides don't arrive at an agreement," Abbas declared.

The French have rejected any U.N. intervention in Algeria, contending it is French territory and a French internal problem. The French insist their army will remain in Algeria to keep order during a referendum following peace. They say international observers will be invited to observe the vote. The rebels insist a free vote could not be held under such circumstances.

School for Boys Inmate Dies of Blow in Fight

Waukesha —AP— A 15-year-old inmate of the Wisconsin school for boys died Monday night a few minutes after he was struck by a fellow inmate in an argument over a tripping incident.

Superintendent Marvin R. McMahon said only one blow was struck. He declined to give out the names of the principals but said that the youth, who was killed, was from Milwaukee. Both were committed as juvenile delinquents.

McMahon ordered an autopsy to determine the exact cause of death and placed the one boy in disciplinary barracks pending the outcome of an investigation by state welfare authorities.

Assassination Attempt Has Limited Travel

Cairo —AP— Iraqi sources here say the assassination attempt on Premier Abdel Karim Kassem two weeks ago has sharply curtailed travel abroad by Iraqi citizens and nationals of other Arab countries living in Iraq.

The sources also said all these who want to leave the country must get exit visas, which usually are not granted. The idea appears to be to block the escape of anyone involved in the assassination plot.

However, air traffic between Cairo and Baghdad, halted for the past two weeks, resumed yesterday.

Men Carry on Through Minor Ills, Succumb Sooner Than Women

Atlantic City, N. J. —AP— The New York hospital-Cornell medical center.

"One is led to wonder whether the tendency of the American male to 'carry on no matter what' may not, indeed, have something to do with the greater longevity among women, but there is no easy answer to this speculation," they said.

They analyzed 25-year health and work records of 116 men and 96 women of comparable ages, background and economics status employed by the New York Telephone company.

The women reported much more bona fide illness, the researchers told the American Public Health association annual meeting here. Their excess illness consisted mainly of colds, grippe, sore throat, stomach upsets, muscular pains, cuts and bruises, headaches, and minor upsets of mood, thought and behavior.

Men might well have had as much of these kinds of complaints but didn't go to doctors or stay home from work, Hinkle said.

Men had more of the serious, life-endangering types of illnesses than the women. A dentist in another report said that eating between meals does seem directly connected with tooth decay in children.

The more frequently the youngsters took such snacks, the more decay they had compared with other children, said Dr. Robert Weiss of the U. S. public health service, Washington, D. C. In his study the children snacked on gum, candy, soft drinks, pastries and ice cream.

Gen. Medaris, Missile Head, Plans to Retire Before Time

New York —AP— Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, head of the army ordnance missile command, plans to retire from active military service three years before mandatory retirement age.

Medaris said Monday night he would retire effective Jan. 31 after 28 years of active duty and 10 in the national guard and army reserve. The army's mandatory retirement age is 60.

Medaris did not reveal his plans. An army spokesman said Medaris had planned for some time to retire and that interservice squabbles over space projects had not influenced his decision. However, Medaris has spoken out against transfer from the army to the air force of all space transportation projects.

The 57-year-old general planned a news conference here today. His headquarters is in Huntsville, Ala., and he is in New York to address the National Commercial Finance conference tonight.

Under his command, the army launched the nation's first earth satellite, and the first solar satellite and developed the Jupiter intermediate range (1,500-mile) ballistic missile. The army also launched several other satellites, the latest a 91-pound gyroscope satellite hurled into the sky last week for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Rockefeller Facing an Uphill Struggle for Support in Midwest

Meets Wall of Indifference on Arrival in Chicago for Speeches

Chicago —AP— Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York appears to be waging an uphill battle today in his bid for midwestern support for the Republican presidential nomination.

He slammed into a wall of public indifference on his arrival here yesterday for a 2-day visit designed to test his chances of gaining support to challenge Vice President Nixon for the GOP nomination.

The midwest is considered a Nixon stronghold. No Original Support No organized support for the New York governor was apparent during the early stages of his Chicago visit. Nor were there any crowds interested in seeing the multi-millionaire governor who has been widely mentioned as a possible future president.

Illinois Gov. William G. Stratton, a Republican, met with Rockefeller but said he would remain neutral for the present in the Nixon-Rockefeller contest.

Rockefeller lined up meetings today with other midwest political leaders and businessmen.

The governor's schedule was designed for maximum publicity and political value. But midwest newspapermen who expected a sample of the famed Rockefeller personality were surprised when he turned somewhat testy during a news conference.

He complained several times he was finding it "tiresome" to be constantly subjected to questioning about the possibility he might run for the GOP nomination.

Making Up Mind But he declined to eliminate himself as a potential candidate and said he still was in the process of making up his mind. He expects to make a formal announcement early next year based on the reaction he receives to public appearances and policy statements he plans in various parts of the country.

He said in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Inland Press association today that he planned to discuss such problems as foreign policy, national defense, education, the national economy, labor legislation and civil rights.

He recalled he had held various federal posts in addition to his present office and "I am not entirely unacquainted with many aspects of these problems."

New Charts The new weight charts show that men 5 feet 8 inches tall at 25 average four pounds heavier than they did 30 years ago — 153 pounds; at 35, six pounds heavier, 161; at 45, five pounds heavier, 165; and at 55, three pounds heavier, 166.

The average woman 5 feet 4 inches tall at 25 weighs 125 pounds, 132 at 35, 140 at 45, 144 at 55, and 145 at 65. The report attributed her weight reduction in weight during the past 30 years to decreased weight of her clothes, some increase in the heights of heels on her shoes, and "particularly the greater vogue of slenderness."

The survey also developed new average weight charts to replace those that have been used in doctors' offices and on weighing machines since 1929. The charts indicate men are considerably heavier than they used to be and women more slender.

The study cost $2½ million and involved five million Americans.

Higher Rates "This study shows that insurance companies have been wise in setting higher rates for the overweight," commented Edward A. Lew, chairman of the study committee.

Other findings of the study: Women are healthier than men. Women carry high blood pressure and additional weight with less risk.

Extreme underweight — 40 pounds or so below average — sometimes carries a higher mortality rate than overweight.

Overweight persons who reduce gain in life expectancy.

Accused of Failing to Give Information at Quiz

Washington —(AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted four men, including two union officials, on charges of contempt of congress for failing to give information to the senate rackets committee last year.

The indictments named: Maurice A. Hutcheson of Indianapolis, president of the William Presser of Cleveland, president of Local 555 and Joint Council 41 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

Peter Licavoli of Detroit, reputed leader of the old Detroit "Purple gang," who was convicted of income tax evasion in May, 1938, and sentenced to 24 years.

Ernest Mark High of New York city, editor of Spotlight Publications.

Acting Atty. Gen. Lawrence E. Walsh, who announced the indictments, said each of the defendants had been subpoenaed to testify before the senate committee on improper activities in the labor and management field.

Refused to Answer Hutcheson appeared in response to the subpoena in June, 1958, but refused to answer a number of questions about union funds and his personal expenses.

Among other things, Hutcheson declined to say if he knew teamster President James R. Hoffa and whether he had agreed to support Hoffa's flight to avoid ouster from the AFL-CIO in return for assistance from Hoffa. The Hutcheson indictment alleged 18 instances of contempt.

Presser responded to his subpoena in September, 1958, and testified he had complied with the request that he bring his personal records. The grand jury cited him for contempt on grounds he had refused to say whether he had destroyed any records after receiving the subpoena.

Licavoli was served a subpoena in Detroit, but failed to appear before the committee. High likewise failed to appear for scheduled testimony on May 22, 1958, under a subpoena demanding production of personal and spotlight records.

The contempt statute provides for penalties up to one year imprisonment or $1,000 fine or both for violations.

Barge Traffic To be Ended In Two Weeks

Kaukauna — Coal barges will ply the Fox river for only two more weeks, James Bambery, manager of the Fox River Navigation company, said today.

The 40-year-old firm is in the process of selling its seven barges and two tugs and the crafts will be turned over to their new owners the first week in November at Green Bay.

The firm began operations in 1919 with same fleet it operates today. However, in the last few years only two barges have been used.

Bambery said the crafts have been purchased by steamship and marine construction companies operating on the Great Lakes. Since the barges were specifically constructed for inland water use, it is likely only the engines will be recovered by the new owners, Bambery.

Official dissolution of the navigation company will take place during the annual board of directors meeting in December, he said.

Brady attributed the agency's growth to its emphasis on marketing. "Our account service people," he said, "spend more time in the field working with client sales personnel than in the office. We extend clients' sales organizations through helping plan and conduct distributor and dealer meetings and by implementing highly focused local market promotions. This policy will be continued and expanded which explains my reason for now seeking field-trained sales executives."

Preliminary figures for the agency's fiscal year ending Sept. 30 are highly satisfactory, according to Dan K. Knowlton, assistant treasurer. The Brady company, now starting its 14th year, has become one of the country's largest non-metropolitan agencies. A staff of 40 serves 16 clients representing a wide variety of products and services. The agency is well known for its activities in the consumer hard goods field through its work on Oster electric housewares; Hamilton washers and dryers; Signal fans; Gibson refrigerators, freezers, air conditioners and ranges.

Other Accounts Other accounts include Aid Association for Lutherans, fraternal life insurance; Ansol Chemical Company, fire fighting equipment, refrigeration products, industrial chemicals; Appleton Wire Works corporation, Fourdrinier wires; Appleton Woolen Mills, papermakers' felts; Badger Paper Mills, Inc., waxed paper; Central Paper

Farm Youth Loses Hand in Corn Picker

Seymour—Kenneth Spaude, 21, route 1, Seymour, lost his right hand after it was caught in a corn picker at his father's farm south of the city Monday morning.

His hand was so tightly wedged in the machinery that his co-worker, Jim Heisler, had to dismantle part of the machine to get the hand out. Kenneth's father, Elmer, drove him to Seymour, where he was placed in an ambulance and taken to a Green Bay hospital where the hand was amputated.

Higher Fees Will Go to Sheriffs

Paper Serving Increase Must be Altered by Board Before Election

Madison — Sheriffs under the fee system can collect increased fees under a new schedule in 1960 if their county boards have not changed wage arrangements before nomination papers were circulated for present terms.

Atty. Gen. John Reynolds gave the opinion to Jack D. Steinhilber, Winnebago County district attorney. Steinhilber said the Winnebago county sheriff started billing for increased fees in July after the county board ordered a survey of an increasing total of sheriff's fees.

Reynolds said an increase in fees was authorized by an act of the 1957 legislature, and that these increased fees are to be paid into the county treasury until Dec. 31, 1959. Unless the county specified a limit on fees going to the sheriff before nomination papers were circulated in 1958, the increased fees will go to the sheriff after Dec. 31, Reynolds said.

Local Situations
The Winnebago county sheriff receives a salary plus specified fees.

In Outagamie county, the supervisors raised the sheriff's salary, but the under-sheriff on a slightly changed salary and took the sheriff off the fee system. Since Jan. 1 this year, all fees have gone to the county.

(In Calumet and Waupaca counties, supervisors made no change in the sheriff's status, so the increased fees will be paid the respective sheriffs, not the counties.) Reynolds said the 1957 law and an 1874 state supreme court decision were clear that the sheriff must charge the maximum fees set by statute. He said this was even more explicit if part of the total fees are to be turned over to the county.

"Accordingly, if the sheriff has failed to charge the fees that are authorized by statute where the increase over previous fees is for the benefit of the county, he has been violating a clear duty by charging less than that authorized by statute," Reynolds said.

Aside from the language of the statute, Reynolds said it was his conclusion that it is against public policy to allow any public official collecting fees to charge less than the statutory maximum.

Bids For Office
"Such a procedure could conceivably result in the office of the sheriff being held by the lowest bidder and the mischief resulting from such a situation need not be further belabored," Reynolds said.

Reynolds said that the sheriff on a free system may collect the extra fees starting in 1960 if the county board made no change in pay arrangements before nomination papers were circulated in 1958. The Winnebago county sheriff is under a salary plus fees system approved by the county board Oct. 23, 1956.

Reynolds said, however,

Deception Can Lead to Fraud in Sales, DA Says

When sellers enter the area on equal terms may give an opinion or belief about the goods or property, but ordinarily the buyer has no right to rely on statements of opinion or belief if any question of fraud arises, Greisch explained. It is not fraud if the seller honestly believes his opinion to be true, he added.

Greisch
Sellers dealing with buyers

However, if the seller expresses an opinion and actively misrepresents or conceals something about the object sold, fraud exists, the district attorney noted.

Trade Talk
Along these lines, Greisch explained, many representations of merchandise are made in what could be called dealer's or trade talk. No fraud can be claimed when the buyer is familiar with such expressions and has the chance to inspect and test the property in question, he added.

Telling a customer that buying a particular dress, for instance, will make her the most elegantly dressed woman in Appleton is trade talk, Greisch said. No fraud occurs if the seller predicts something and it does not come to pass, unless a solid misrepresentation of fact is involved. If a piece of land was sold on the basis of the owner's prediction that a new highway would come through the spot and that did not come to pass, no fraud would be involved, Greisch said. But if the seller claimed to have seen a map or signed contracts guaranteeing the road, fraud would be involved, he added.

Equal Footing
When buyer and seller are on equal footing, representations of value ordinarily are considered trade talk, as when car dealers talk to each other. But when statements are made by the seller as fact and there is concealment of information, when the value is known only to the seller, fraud exists, Greisch said.

"Follow your own conscience," Greisch advised. "Keeping in mind that the law is changing. What was unethical yesterday is fraudulent practice today, what is unethical today will be fraudulent tomorrow. Law follows the conscience of the people and the ethics of today will be the law of tomorrow."

Red Tells of Space Station In Kit Form

London — A giant interplanetary station that could be assembled like a do-it-yourself kit in the far reaches of space was described Monday by a top Soviet space expert.

Developing such an inhabitable space station circling around the earth along an egg-shaped orbit is a very difficult but still a possible task, Ari Shternfeld said in a Tass interview broadcast by Moscow radio.

Shternfeld, laureate of the international incentive prize in astronautics, said many years would still be needed to solve "This captivating problem."

The station, consisting of several specially equipped rockets, would first be assembled on the ground in order to test its structure, he said.

Then the dismantled station would be launched in the form of individual manned rockets to the planned orbit where they would be assembled into a whole.

"It is not excluded that the rockets will be launched simultaneously as a squadron," said Shternfeld. "In dispatching such a squadron, it would not be necessary to search for individual rockets, launched at different times, in the cosmos."

With a simultaneous launching, he continued, the crews of individual rockets could help each other and would be able to assemble the station in a shorter time.

Service Helps Jews Settle in Africa, Australia

People Still Boss, Rep. Byrnes Says

BY DAVID SCHAEFER
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

If the last session of congress proved anything, it proved the American people are still boss, Rep. John Byrnes told members of five service clubs Monday.

Speaking at a noon meeting sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce at the Conway hotel, Byrnes said the people began to make themselves heard when the Democratic majority in congress laid the groundwork for a congressional spending spree.

Byrnes attacked the Democratic plans for airport improvement, urban renewal, public housing and sewage plants, and said, "Some of the plans might be nice if we could pay for them, but we'll never have a situation where all demands can be met."

He said when the Democratic majority moved into congress the special interest groups moved in with them, and while Eisenhower fought to balance the budget the pressure groups proposed a new deal.

"The influence of the pressure groups represents a serious and dangerous trend, Byrnes said. "The responsibility for government rests with the silent, unorganized people. In the past they have paid no attention to government actions, have shunned politics, and have even neglected voting."

Byrnes said when the public interest in government special groups enter the picture to work for their own goals. The demands of these groups are considered in the light of how much influence they have at election time, Byrnes said.

Public Reaction

The last session of the 86th congress saw a change in the public attitude, he said. People reacted to Democratic spending plans by writing "sincere, concrete, thoughtful views of the general public" to their congressmen.

The public's expression influenced action in congress on such issues as labor reform and the budget, Byrnes said. There was opposition to labor reform until the Democrats were made aware the public wanted it, he said.

"There is a continuing battle between the voice of the people and the voice of organized interest groups. When the next session of congress begins it is important that the people continue to speak up rather than go back to sitting on their hands as they have in the past," he said.

Next Session Important

Many of the bills that provide for unnecessary spending have passed the senate and will be considered by the house in the next session, he said. He pointed out the bills had passed the senate by narrow margins and continued expression of public will could determine their fate in the house.

Byrnes also said there are

Savings Bonds at 53.5 Pct. of Goal

Outagamie county purchases of series E and H federal savings bonds totaled 53.5 per cent, compared to a state average of 59.3 per cent, at the end of the third quarter, the Federal Reserve bank reports.

County purchases ended Sept. 30 totaled $1,210,925, F. Joseph Sensenbrenner, chairman, announced.

Other sale totals include Calumet county, $217,646 or 52.3 per cent of the goal; Wau-paca county, $388,617 or 62.3 per cent; and Winnebago county, $1,430,007 or 50.9 per cent.

State sales for the first three quarters totaled $68,468,415. September sales amounted to $6,347,157.

Old E and H series bonds now are earning at least 4 per cent more than before because of an increase in rates effective June 1, 1959.

several important issues congress should deal with in the coming session. He listed farm legislation, raising the ceiling on intermediate and long term interest rates on government securities, management of fiscal operations and civil rights.

"The past session proved the people can influence congressional action," Byrnes said. "The next session will determine if they will continue their influence or surrender it to pressure groups."

that in a matter of days by any means."

The withholding system, which died in the Republican senate this summer, could win support this fall because Republicans are committed to increased expenditures of $26 million for 1960-61, the Democratic governor said.

"They might be willing to take withholding because of the windfall, then wait for the report of the tax committee, and avoid a temporary tax increase now," Nelson said.

The withholding system would bring in a windfall of an estimated $88 million because taxes would be withheld the first year of the system over the same period that last year's income tax returns are filed under the old system.

Nelson has proposed that $24 million of this go for state capital construction projects and $64 million be divided among local municipalities.

Nelson said he is hearing of increased support for the withholding system, partly because the plan was not understood earlier.

After a speech to the League of Wisconsin Municipalities convention at Green Bay last week, he said several mayors and aldermen told him they had changed their minds on opposing the plan.

He said five or six top corporation presidents and chairmen of the board have told him withholding is the only sensible tax collection plan.

As he did at Green Bay, Nelson again predicted it is inevitable that the state will have a withholding system.

"If I don't do it, then the Republicans will and they will run around bragging about it like they did in New York," Nelson said.

As an alternative to the withholding system, Nelson said he has in mind an increase in income tax rates along the entire scale, coupled with increased exemptions and a possible reduction of the surtax.

He appeared to rule out covering the deficit with a boost in the present surtax on personal incomes, now 25 per cent for the biennium's first year and 20 per cent for the second year.

Indications were that Nelson is thinking of boosting the exemptions from the present $7 a person to $10 to aid the lower income groups.

Joe Nusbaum, the governor's financial advisor, reportedly is studying a plan that would add 1 per cent to the rate in each personal income tax bracket, increasing the range from 2 to 9 1/2 per cent instead of the present 1 to 8 1/2 per cent.

Tax on Banks

The plan also provides for an increase on cigarettes and tobacco and a tax on banks. The governor said he does not plan to oppose any anti-sales tax resolutions at next month's Democratic state convention Milwaukee.

"They may just go ahead and reaffirm their platform provisions," Nelson said.

At their convention last year the Democrats went on record against a sales tax.

The Tax That Cannot Be Escaped

Last June when Michigan government was in financial difficulties many industrial firms there were talking about moving out to escape the heavy tax burdens. Samuel Rich, founder and president of Acorn Aluminum Products Company of Detroit, was giving some thought to the future of his company. His plant was too small for its expanding business and the 2-year contract with the UAW Local 985 had expired. The firm's products, sliding doors and windows of aluminum and glass, were distributed through 36 states and there was no reason in his market for remaining in Michigan. He also had some enticing offers from other states.

But today the Acorn company occupies a new modern factory in the Detroit area and already is planning an addition next spring. In making the decision to remain in Detroit, Mr. Rich considered carefully three things: Labor, taxes and the state's future. He called in the union and made a deal for a 3-year period which is quite acceptable. As for the state's future he is impressed with the seaway developments and the "temperate climate" of thinking by labor. On the question of taxes he says, "As for taxes, the biggest bite can't be escaped if you are in Michigan, or Indiana or Tennessee or anywhere else — that's Uncle Sam's tax."

"State or local taxes are higher here in Michigan. However, we felt we were getting real value for our tax money here that we might not get in other states — roads, police and fire protection and the quality of the people educated in tax-supported schools.

"The question is whether you are getting a fair shake for the tax bucks you are putting out. We feel we are."

Samuel Rich's view of the situation in Michigan proves, we think, that a great deal of the talk about taxes and penalties in a particular state are exaggerated. It certainly is true that the "big bite" which is the federal tax cannot be escaped anywhere in the United States. Further, the state and local taxes are not burdensome if they are used for the things people want, such as those enumerated by Mr. Rich. His statement, we think, could well apply to many situations in Wisconsin and in fact a similar statement recently was issued by the American Motors corporation which is one of Wisconsin's largest employers. Wisconsin taxes are high but Wisconsin offers many advantages which are provided by these higher taxes. One of the greatest for any manufacturer or businessman is the excellence of Wisconsin and local government which relieves the business man from the impositions of racketeers and of other unhappy circumstances which he would be obliged to face in some other states.

Wisconsin needs all of the industries it has now and all that it will be able to entice here in the future. The big selling argument for Wisconsin as a location for industry can be found, we think, in Mr. Rich's statement on Michigan.

Who Shot Kassem?

The attempted assassination of Premier Kassem of Iraq has been shrouded in mystery. The premier presumably is getting well but there has been no official announcement about the identity or fate of his assailant. It may be that he is not known; more likely the authorities don't want to admit that he may represent a substantial segment of public opinion in Iraq.

The trend toward communism in Iraq has alarmed the nationalist-minded Arabs including Kassim himself. Last spring the premier made it clear that the communists had no special voice in his government. But, despite his efforts, their infiltration of the People's Resistance Forces has increased. The economic bottom which Iraq hit this summer has been grist for their propaganda mills. And there seemed to be some Red influence in the executions of military and civilian personnel alleged to be connected with the aborted Mosul uprising.

The executions alarmed the Arab world despite the cheapness of life in most of those lands. The man who shot Kassem may have been a relative; more likely he was an Arab nationalist hoping either for closer ties with Nasser's United Arab Republic or something closer to independence than the shaky neutralism of Kassem's Iraq. There have been rumors that King Hussein of Jordan has put in a bid for the throne in case of Kassem's demise.

Unpredicted was the reaction in Egypt to the attempted killing. The radio no longer blares about the evils of Kassem. It is likely that Nasser, who has been something of a success this year in winning friends among other Arab rulers, may have had Kassem next in line for his approach. He has soothed Hussein, Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia and Ibrahim Abboud of Sudan. Besides Kassem, he is on the outs only with Tunisia's Habib Bourguiba. He has even shown a willingness to accept a UN commission to implement UN resolutions relating to the Arabs and Israel, including one on freedom of shipping in the Suez if other questions involving the Palestine refugees also are recognized.

This attitude of the Arabs in general and Nasser in particular should be considered by the western world. Kassem may be no staunch friend of the West, but there may be subtle ways to encourage him to throw out the Reds in order to keep his country and himself safe from another nationalist uprising. This may not be a permanently healthy move for Kassem since a Red bullet might come straighter than the one that only wounded him. But Kassem is not a man to avoid risk; and the West needs that oil.

New Treatment for an Old Disease

There are approximately 100,000 alcoholics in Wisconsin. Nearly every Wisconsin resident has a relative or a friend with this disease.

This information comes from the Wisconsin Council on Alcoholism. The designation of the affliction as a disease also is the council's.

One of the greatest obstacles to finding a cure for alcoholism is the attitude of the public toward it. The WCA has a bill before the Wisconsin legislature which was passed by the Senate and may come up in the Assembly when the legislature convenes again next month. The bill proposes a governor's commission on alcoholism composed of five members to be appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate. While it is believed the commission could be useful in investigation and research, one of its prime functions would be educational. This is because the experts on this subject believe that effective work in this field cannot be accomplished unless there is a proper understanding of the matter by the public.

The bill calls for an annual appropriation of $40,000. The commission would be required to report the findings to the legislature in April of 1961 and again in April of 1963. The duties of the commission are given as follows:

Basic research on the nature of alcoholism.

The extent and effects of alcoholism to include: a causation survey, teenage indulgence, incidents and motivation and effects study plus other surveys.

The control of alcoholism. This would include clinical research evaluation studies, treatment and rehabilitation, community clinics and information and education.

It is proposed that the commission remain free of any connection whatever with the wet and dry question. It is proposed that it concern itself only with the authentic, scientific data which would emerge from controlled research designed to do the utmost in solving the problem of alcoholism in Wisconsin.

Wisconsin had a state-supported program under a Bureau of Alcoholism study launched by the legislature in 1947. This was a pioneer effort in the nation and was widely acclaimed as such. However, the program failed for the lack of both knowledge and leadership in 1955 when the legislature failed to appropriate money for it.

Since that time there has been no state program but the students of alcoholism believe it is time for another trial. There is a great deal more information available on the subject today and those familiar with the previous efforts are confident that more progress could now be made.

The problem is so big, and its solution so important to the welfare of the country, that the state can well afford to risk the modest appropriation asked in the hope that something will be accomplished. The first program developed much information which is now available to those proceeding with further study, but which will be lost if no action is taken.

The State Would End Discrimination

Gov. Nelson has signed into law a bill which is intended to abolish racial and religious discrimination by firms holding state contracts. The governor points out Wisconsin is the first state to enact such a law and thus may be accounted a leader in the nation.

One would think that under Wisconsin liberal laws it would be unnecessary to enact a specific law on this subject. However, it is customary for the national government, and sometimes for state governments, to enact such legislation more as a means of giving official sanction to a policy which it is hoped private firms and persons may follow, than as a way of clearing up a large area of discrimination. Gov. Nelson apparently had something like that in mind when he declared that the new law was "one more guarantee that Wisconsin is willing to lead the way in assuring all citizens of equal privileges and opportunities."

In the future each state agency will be responsible for the enforcement of the act among the companies it does business with. As usual in such situations, where it is hoped to win compliance by leadership, the law provides that the first violation calls for a warning while the second may result in the firm being placed on an ineligible list for a state contract. All state contracts in the future will carry a clause banning discrimination in employment, promotions and demotions, recruitment, layoffs, rates of pay and selection for training by firms doing business with the state.

Cooperation Needed to Inform Parents About Proper Movies

Editor, Post-Crescent:

One parent's voice is answering the question put to us by the Twin City Ministerial association.

Yes, the standard we uphold for our youth is being jeopardized by movies of questionable moral example and by promotional devices which might be hazardous to desirable conduct.

Before consenting to our seventh grade daughter attending evening weekend movies alone, we went together to a desirable movie on a Friday night. As a result of our attending, we have not allowed her to go alone. One manager cannot constitute a baby sitting organization alone for children of ages six to sixteen, however, we found her certainly was trying to! The theaters have become a financially inexpensive way for parents to have their children taken care of for them, regardless of what movie is being shown.

We have wanted to attend a movie as a family for many weeks, but have been unable to find one desirable for children of ages seven to twelve.

We can work as youth leaders, teachers in the churches and schools and get nowhere if the parents themselves are not concerned for their own. We can pick P.T.A. movies for grade school youngsters with the greatest care, but from seventh grade on, we don't question the choice of the theaters one bit on what they present on the screen. The only alternative is to forbid movie going almost entirely, as a necessity, because of the poor choice of movies.

A rousing backing by many, many parents will show our children we care about the influence they bring our communities in the years ahead. I now ask the question of the theater managers: Are you willing to help the parents uphold the standard of our youth, by giving us movies of good moral example which can lead to desirable conduct?

Then the parents have a question or two to answer, too. Are you willing to censor the movies your children see and keep them home when a questionable film is being shown? Are you willing to take the responsibility of conduct for your children in the theater, to make a movie enjoyable for everyone who paid to attend?

When the answer to these questions is yes by all concerned, we can look at the billing of a movie in this newspaper and know there is entertainment worth going to see.

There is a town named Appleton and this town was named in a very special way. This town was at the bottom of a hill and at the top of the hill there is an apple orchard. The top of that hill has to be fenced around because when the apples fell they would always roll down in the town. And on one special day they had an earthquake and that earthquake shook all the apples on the ground. The fences were over flowing and then they broke. All the apples came rushing down the hill. There was apples in the bakery. There was apples in the pantry. There was apples every where and that is why they call this town because the apples came down by the tons "Appleton."

Theatre Company Suffers Loss

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of Oct. 23, 1880.

The Irving Theatre Company gave our citizens a three nights season last week, and were unfortunate enough to strike the town at a bad time for amusements of that character.

The facts of the wretched weather and the evening meetings of an interesting character at the Methodist church, combined to render their houses so small as to make the season one of financial loss. The company was compelled to leave some of their bills unpaid. The company was a good one — much better than the average travelling show — and it deserved better luck.

Young GOP President Decries Surtax Hike

BY RICHARD LARSON President of the Wisconsin Federation of Young Republicans

Madison — Taxes, taxes, taxes! It seems that politicians never stop talking about taxes and the more they talk the higher the taxes go. Next year will witness a genuine tax payers revolt if the fall session of the legislature continues to play fast and loose with appropriations and new tax schemes.

This trend to affix blame for tax increases is the strongest in the younger businessmen group (age 25-35). Unlike their counterpart in the 1930's and late 1940's, the young men and women are growing more aware of the fact that legislative largesse means money out of their own pocket and cramped budgets that already are being scrimped.

Traveling throughout the state on Young GOP business and speaking before all types of groups has made it crystal clear that the 5 per cent surtax increase is one of the most unpopular actions taken in the last legislative session. The defeated withholding tax aroused comment and a sign of relief when it was washed out . . . the surtax increase has aroused a more quiet, controlled rumble . . . but one that will explode with a bang in the 1960 elections.

As a young clerk in a dairy plant said, "Why should I spend an extra $5 or $10 a year which would buy the kid another pair of shoes, just because a bunch of politicians in Madison were afraid to say no to some new spending scheme?"

SPECTRE

The spectre of a "refundable sales tax" combined with our present income tax would mean chaos in our already overburdened state tax picture. Opinion for a sales tax seems favorable but only if it eliminates some present tax. The sales tax as merely an additional source of revenue would create a demand for a public accounting that would rock the capitol for some time.

The battle cry of tax-raising politicians is that costs have gone up and state responsibilities have increased. Let's look at this a moment. As the state grows and costs rise accordingly a governor can easily point to this growth as a reason for more spending . . . hence higher taxes. But this is the easy way out. What is overlooked is that as the state grows so does the tax base and an income tax of the same rate as used previously will bring in more tax dollars than before because the amount of taxable income and production has increased. Voters can legitimately ask . . . and they do . . . why raise taxes?

Second, with the additional revenues politicians have raised with new taxes grander new spending schemes are developed and then new appropriations are made. This is precisely what Gov. Nelson has done. Inheriting a very comfortable surplus (which in 1958's campaign he said didn't exist and which he admitted did exist in 1959) he not only advocated spending programs to use of his inherited surplus but has raised the surtax 5 per cent and now talks about more new taxes. What is the result?

Throughout the state the most evident factor is the utter disillusionment of the average voter with Wisconsin's present administration. Elected in 1958 by a strong vote of public confidence, Gov. Nelson campaigned on the issue of Wisconsin's tax inequity and poor financing picture. In nine months not only has the tax picture been unchanged but new taxes have been levied. Young voters, for that matter, all voters now realize that the Democratic tax reform campaign plank was not a program at all but just campaign double-talk.

LEGISLATURE

When the fall session of the legislature convenes two problems confront the legislature. One is taxes, but behind tax problems are appropriation measures. If state legislators and the Governor's advisors have not talked with Wisconsin voters about their views on appropriations they should. A tight fisted, budget-balancing session is in order. In fact, appropriations passed in the spring session should be reviewed and modified.

GOP as well as Democratic senators and assemblymen had best listen to the groundswell of public opinion or both parties will be blamed equally. GOP members cannot promiscuously pass pet appropriations hoping the onus for resulting tax increases will be borne by Gov. Nelson. As Gov. Nelson often says "let the chips fall where they may." It behooves legislators to stand fast for economy or the chips will fall on them and they'll wonder why their constituents deserted them . . . even after they'd voted new and better "goodies" for the folks back home.

Big Business Aids Quality of Colleges

From The Orlando Sentinel

U. S. corporations are providing real help to improve the quality of education offered in our colleges and universities.

In 1953, corporation gifts to institutions of higher learning totaled $40 million. Last year they amounted to $136 million. This year it is expected the total will be $150 million.

Business not only needs the trained manpower colleges and universities produce, but corporation officers want to preserve and nourish the traditional American ideal of educational opportunity.

But there may be a third factor — the desire to keep education out of the hands of federal bureaucrats who would call the tune if colleges and universities were supported with federal money. Keeping education free of political dictation is the most important need of all.

Panel Explains System to Roosevelt PTA;
Will Address Other Associations Next Week

Roosevelt Junior High school parents got a look at the new seventh grade report card Monday night and heard it explained as a system that considers ability grouping while using ABC's.

The same panel that presented the program at Roosevelt will appear at 7:30 p.m. next Monday at James Madison Junior High and at 8 p.m. next Tuesday at Wilson Junior High. Panel members are Neil Lunenschloss, Roosevelt principal; Norman Johnson, Madison guidance director; Orlyn Zieman, Wilson principal; Mrs. Ruth Ragus, parent member of the report card study committee; and Werner Witte, assistant high school principal.

Johnson said the card is based on ability grouping, instituted in the junior high schools because children differ in their ability to learn just as they differ in the physical makeup. It enables teachers to take children at the point they have reached and help them grow.

Seven Categories
Children are placed in groups after teachers study seven categories of ability:

1. Academic achievement.
2. Native intelligence.
3. Standardized subject achievement tests.
4. Previous teachers' judgments.
5. Social development.
6. Emotional development.
7. Chronological age.

The first four categories are given more attention than the last three, he said. Children are not grouped for physical education or similar subjects, and may be placed in a fast group in one subject and a slow group in another.

ABC Value Points
Zieman explained the card is an outgrowth of a gifted-child committee report several years ago, which urged continuation of grouping beyond sixth grade.

It measures students by giving them ABCs with value points. The value differs with the group in which the child is placed. An A in the top group is worth six points; in the middle group five points, and in the low group four points.

"A child of any ability has a chance to earn an A," Zieman explained. When overall achievement has to measure at the end of a child's pupil school career, the grade points can be added.

Zieman said not every person in the school system agreed on the card and the first year is just an experiment.

Not Perfect Card
Mrs. Ragus said the card is not perfect but would tell parents much more in a much more significant way. She said it also would make all parents aware of ability grouping.

She also pointed out that children can be moved from one group to another when their performance indicates a reconsideration of their ability is needed.

Witte said the card probably would create a few difficulties in the high school when a child's entire school performance must be evaluated for colleges and employment applications. "It's a question of arithmetic," Witte said.

Parental Evaluation
He added that the high school has to adjust grades for about 40 students yearly, who transfer to Appleton from schools where another grading system is used. He suggested that if ability grouping is successful in high school, that the high school might need revise its grading system also.

Parents will be asked to evaluate the card at the end of the year, Lunenschloss added.

Federal Paper
Board 12-Week
Profit Rose .

New York — Federal Paper Board company, Inc., reported gains in sales and net income for the 12 weeks and 36 weeks ended September 5.

John R. Kennedy, president, also noted in the interim report to shareholders that "with continued good business, 1959 operating results should approximate earlier estimates." In April, Kennedy said he expected the paper manufacturing concern to earn about $4 a common share, compared with the $3.79 a share reported for 1958.

For the 12 weeks ended Sept. 5, Federal reported profits of $1,070,000, or 90 cents a common share, up from $895,000, or 84 cents a share, last year. Volume rose to $17,463,000 from $16,684,000.

In the 36-week period, the company had net income of $3,120,000, or $2.64 a common share, on sales of $52,765,000. In the like period a year earlier, Federal earned $3,008,000, or $2.59 a share, on volume of $50,149,000.

Kennedy noted that Federal realized an after-tax capital gain of $262,000, or 24 cents a common share, on the sale of its minority stock interest in Spaulding Pulp and Paper company. This profit will be included in the report for the final 17-week period of 1959, he stated.

The strike came amid hot budget disputes between the coalition government conservatives and socialists.

deficit spending and a $120 million budget increase for 1960.

Conservative Finance Minister Reinhard Kamitz insists that last year's $1,700,000,000 budget must not be increased to avoid inflationary trends.

Group Ready To Prevent TV 'Rigging'

Chicago—The president of the National Association of Broadcasters said Monday the industry is prepared to set up its own additional safeguards if necessary to prevent "rigging" of TV quiz program.

Harold E. Fellows, speaking at the opening session of the association's 2-day fall conference, expressed personal concern over certain testimony presented recently to a congressional committee.

"I should not have to remind you that the result of these hearings may be a challenge to our system of voluntary self regulation," he said.

Charging that "outside packaging producers" have hoodwinked both the public and the broadcasters, Fellows added, "I assure you that we at NAB are fully aware of the broadcaster's responsibility to the viewing public."

Dubbed Laughs, Applause Hit

CBS Considering Elimination of All Phony TV Tricks

New York—The Columbia Broadcasting system is considering whether it should continue to use phony applause and laughter on some television shows.

A spokesman for the network said Monday night CBS is reviewing the use of "canned" applause and other practices in light of a recent statement by CBS President Frank Stanton.

Stanton said in New Orleans Friday that all big money quiz shows were being eliminated by CBS and added: "We accept the responsibility for content and quality and for assurance to the American people that what they see and hear on CBS programs is exactly what it purports to be."

For years, even on the big radio shows, long before TV was developed, loud applause and uproarious laughter on one show were recorded for use on other shows.

Eliminate Deception

The CBS spokesman said the network also was reviewing the "spontaneous" interviews that actually had been rehearsed, and shows purporting to take place in one locale that actually had been filmed elsewhere.

The New York Times today quoted Stanton as saying in a telephone interview from Texas that he planned to review all CBS shows personally to see if they were using any kind of deception.

The Times said Stanton declared that the time has come for each broadcaster to review his programming schedule to eliminate audio or visual misrepresentation. This includes the practice of dubbing recorded applause or laughter into the sound track of a completed program, he said.

The newspaper said Stanton cited the network's "Person to Person" program, which featured Edward R. Murrow last season and which now stars Charles Collingwood.

The program endeavored to create the illusion that it was spontaneous, but actually the guests were given questions in advance that they would be asked on the program, the Times said Stanton asserted.

Dr. Tom Dooley on Paar's Show Tonight

Jingo Says He's Unexcited About Chopping Off Quiz Shows by CBS-TV

Dr. Tom Dooley, cancer victim who gathered Appleton dollars Friday in his personal crusade to uplift people of Laos, will be a guest of Jack Paar's late night TV show tonight. Paar has Ed Sullivan and Elsa Maxwell booked for Wednesday night.

Jingo just cannot get excited about CBS-TV's proposal to kill off all quiz shows in the wake of scandals uncovered by a congressional committee. The question-answer nonsense was never entertaining anyway.

Movie moguls, please note: The French government last week decided 16-year-olds are too young to see some of France's more daring film productions. The minimum age was raised to 18. Films in France are rated by the government.

Elliott W. Henry, Jr., one-time publicity director for WTAQ in Green Bay, has been promoted to director of information for ABC-TV in Hollywood.

A graduate of Beloit college, Henry, his wife, and two children reside in Glenn Ellyn, Ill., but will move shortly.

Charles Laughton, a Jingo favorite, will narrate and star in a 90-minute special featuring highlights of William Shakespeare's comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Show scheduled for the Tuesday night NBC-TV "Startime" series. The world-renowned Shakespeare Memorial Theater company at Stratford-on-Avon will support him.

Gary Cooper, the "Yup" man, will attempt to be a trifle more vocal Wednesday morning in telling Dave Garway about a new facet of his career—actor-turned-businessman. . . . They claim W. Somerset Maugham's considering a projected TV series based on 39 of his lesser known South Sea stories.

"Death Valley Days," now in its 30th year of broadcasting, will feature a glittering array of guest stars when it starts its new season this month. Caesar Romero is one and, of all people, Don Wilson, the chubby Jack Benny announcer, is another.

Heavyweight Champ Ingemar Johansson makes his TV dramatic debut in "The Killers," the Hemingway special set for Nov. 19 on CBS-TV. Dean Stockwell previously was announced as star. Johansson will play Ole Anderson, ex-boxer who's sought by two hired guns.

Lawrence Says

No Need for Congress Quiz on TV Shows

Plenty of Law on Books to Protect Public Interest

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — Why all the hullabaloo about new laws and more government regulation just because some misguided persons betrayed the confidence of the public by "rigging" TV - quiz shows? There is plenty of law on the statute books and plenty of opportunity for the broadcasting companies to protect themselves and the public interest without intervention by congress or the Federal Communications commission.

To understand the subject, it is necessary to realize that the major broadcasting companies are for the most part not producers of shows at all. They are really like landlords of a building. They deal in rentals. They get paid on a time basis by the sponsors of programs who wish to advertise certain products or services. The sponsors buy from the producers a "package" of shows and, through agents known as advertising agencies, pay rent to the broadcasting companies for the time and facilities used. The sponsors write their own "commercials" and are subject to Federal Trade commission laws if any misrepresentation about a product offered for sale can be proved.

It is easy enough to make sweeping charges against a group of people as a whole. Some of the same critics who were so articulate recently when communist sympathizers as a class were assailed—and who cried out loudly against "guilt by association"—are quite ready today to issue a blanket denunciation of all advertising men.

Broadcasting Responsibilities

The expose of what has been happening on the quiz shows will serve to define more exactly the responsibilities of the broadcasting companies as well as the producing companies with which they do business. The broadcasting companies may have been hurt in prestige by the recent episodes, and they realize now more than ever that perhaps they have not been as vigilant as they should have been.

The broadcasting companies have a duty, moreover, to examine carefully all programs, whether sponsored or not. What shall be said of a program sponsored by a tax-free educational foundation which purports to give an objective view of a subject and then deliberately calls in for "both sides" on a panel persons who really are on the same side of the fence? What shall be said of some broadcasts sponsored by labor unions and called "news," which select certain facts and omit others so as to make a good show? Who is to be the judge of the fairness of it all?

Broadcasting is entitled to the protection of the free-speech and free-press doctrines of our constitution on a par with the newspapers. No congressional committee should be permitted to tell any broadcasting company how much time it shall give on the air to any political or economic discussion, whether by a candidate or anyone else. The broadcasting companies, like the press, have a duty to be fair lest they lose the confidence of the listening or viewing or reading public, as the case may be.

It would be unfair if honest quiz contests or any other "show" on the radio or TV were to be abolished just because some producers or participants in the past were found to be dishonest.

Politburo Expels East German Leader

Berlin — (AP) — Communist East Germany's planner, purged last year, confessed publicly Monday to "opportunism" and endangering the unity of the party leadership. Former Deputy Premier Fred Oelssner (pronounced Elssner) was expelled from the East German politburo and lost his government job in a big scale clean-out of revisionists — communists who broke with the official party line.

His confession, dated Sept. 4 was published today in Neue Weg, the official organ of the party leadership. In it Oelssner says he wanted to go easy on collectivizing East German farms, in the fear that rapid collectivization would cut down production. This, he said, had proved to be "opportunistic and false."

But what seems to be his major sin was: "I stood up against the majority and especially against Comrade Ulbricht, the clearest and most logical exponent of the general line of the party, at a time when the unity of the party was more important than ever."

Four Die in Plane Crash On West Coast

3 Engines Torn Loose in Test of Boeing Jetliner

Everett, Wash.—A Boeing 707 intermediate jetliner, three engines torn loose in test maneuvers and trailing flames, crashed on a river sand bar northeast of here yesterday. Four of the eight aboard apparently were killed.

An unidentified body was recovered by rescuers who worked late into the night searching the swift-flowing river and its wooded banks under the glow of emergency searchlights.

Witnesses said one engine of the plane, on a test flight for Braniff International Airways, fell in flames as the pilot tried to reach a pasture 200 yards from the crash site. The plane burned several hours setting trees and brush afire.

Civil Aeronautics board officials were to inspect the scene which lies in the Cascade foothills.

After talking to survivors, Boeing said three engines on the $5 million plane were torn loose because of misapplication of controls during a violent maneuver at 12,000 feet. The company said its pilot, Russell H. Baum, 32, of Seattle, took over and was attempting a controlled landing with power from the remaining engine.

In addition to Baum, the missing men are George C. Hagen, 28, Renton, Wash., J. A. Berke and S. Staley, both Braniff employees.

The tail section was not damaged in the crash and the survivors had taken refuge there. They were William Huebner of the Federal Aviation agency at Dallas, Al Krause and Fred Synmank, both with Braniff, and William J. Allsopp, a Boeing pilot from Seattle. They were hospitalized, but were reported not seriously hurt.

It was the second 707 to crash within a year. Last August an American Airlines jetliner crashed 70 miles east of New York City killing five crewmen.

U. S. Acts Under Taft Law to Halt Walkout

The union 33-member executive board already is in Pittsburgh.

McDonald said earlier that the union would fight an injunction proceeding "with might and main" but he added that "if it is issued, we will live up to the law of our country."

The president acted yesterday 3 1/2 hours after receiving a special fact-finding panel's report that it had been unable to mediate the dispute and saw "no prospect for an early cessation of the strike."

President's Letter
The president's letter directing Rogers to seek an injunction said:

"It is essential to the national interest that production be resumed immediately in the steel industry."

"Free collective bargaining has not worked in this dispute despite the dedicated efforts of the federal government and the fact finding board of inquiry."

"In order to protect the interests of all the American people, this leaves me with no alternative except to seek an injunction under the existing law."

"America's hopes for a voluntary responsible settlement have not been fulfilled. It is a sad day for the nation."

Under the Taft-Hartley act, the president can seek a strike-ending injunction if he feels the strike imperils the nation's health, welfare or safety. The president undoubtedly took into consideration the nearly 250,000 workers in allied industries who have been idled by the steel strike.

Could Resume Strike

An injunction would send the strikers back to work for an 80-day cooling-off period while negotiations for a settlement continue.

If the strike still is unsettled at the end of the 80 days, the workers are free to strike again.

The two big issues in the steel talks have been the union's demand for a wage hike and the industry's demands for changes in working rules that would enable it to save money.

In its report to the president, the special fact-finding panel said it "cannot point to any single issue of any consequence whatsoever upon which the parties are in agreement."

The Steelworkers, according to government figures, were earning an average of $3.11 an hour before the strike began. Their latest proposal they sought increased wages and other benefits which they valued at 20 cents an hour under a 2-year pact.

But, according to the panel, industry claimed the package would cost 32.4 cents an hour. The industry made a counter-proposal for a 3-year contract with benefits, which the panel said industry estimated at 33 cents an hour.

Kills Children But Fails to Take Own Life

since the death of her husband.

That night, about 9:30, Mrs. Urdanivia continued, she told Luis, Miriam and the other children, Christine, 12, Ruth Lucille, 10, and Anna Marie, 7, to take the concoction for their coughs.

The family then went to bed. Mrs. Urdanivia slept until yesterday when she awakened and started toward the kitchen. She passed the bedroom of Carol Miriam and noticed her lying there, her face black. She knew the child was dead, Mrs. Urdanivia explained to McGinley, and suddenly everything she had done came back to her.

Aware that all of the children were dead, Mrs. Urdanivia said she then broke a drinking glass and cut her wrists in an effort to end her own life.

Turns on Jets
When this was unsuccessful, she turned on gas jets. Later, after realizing the gas might harm other occupants of the apartment in which she lived, she turned the jets off, then collapsed.

The owner of the building, Robert C. Schaeffer, who runs a business establishment on the first floor, smelled the gas and began investigating. He found the door to Mrs. Urdanivia's apartment open and discovered the bodies. Police were called.

McGinley said that Mrs. Urdanivia "appeared rational" in giving the long statement to authorities. He said that he will file five general murder charges against her later today when she is released from Sacred Heart hospital.

Mrs. Urdanivia, who worked in a department store and at the hospital to support her children, expressed her bitterness when she told McGinley that she had asked for assistance several times from both Peruvian and American agencies but was turned down.

Kaukauna — Paul Verbeten, 24-year-old son of Kaukauna Patrolman and Mrs. Earl Verbeten, 709 E. Ninth street, injured when struck by a car while crossing Boyd avenue about 11 a. m. Monday, is in good condition today at Kaukauna Community hospital.

The child has a cut on his forehead and he suffered a mild concussion when hit by a car driven by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John De Vries, 76, Hollandtown.

The driver did not stop at the scene. Witnesses told police the car may have been driven by a priest. Police went to Hollandtown to question the priest and examine his car. The chrome over the right directional lights was dented.

Msgr. De Vries told police he felt a bump while going up the Boyd avenue hill and thought he had struck a hole

To Mae West and Truck Drivers

This is the second of a series of articles from Harry Golden's latest best-seller, "For 2¢ Plain."

Let us gossips get it off our chest and say that Mae West is 67 years old. Does not this make her all the more remarkable?

For an entire generation Mae West has been a sort of high priestess of sex. Yet it is well to note that in her stage and screen careers, spanning nearly a half-century, Miss West has been far less obvious about sex than any one of a dozen Hollywood starlets. Miss Jayne Mansfield and the others travel around the country breathing in and beathing out and if they stopped their deep heaving they would be finished. Mae West in all of her career has never bared her bosom, and no one in her audiences has ever seen her ankles. In fact her greatest success came to her in those Klondike costumes of the 1890's, those full skirts down to the floor with the padding of two or three petticoats, and the picture hat. Even her scripts never have been obscene for the mere sake of obscenity. Actually she has uttered fewer risqué or suggestive lines in an entire generation than I have heard Bob Hope use in a single half-hour performance.

What then has made Mae West this high priestess of sex? For one thing I believe she is a very great artist. Mae West was as great an artist in her field, trading quips with W. C. Fields, as Sarah Bernhardt was in the recitations from L'Aiglon which I heard her deliver in at the old Palace theatre.

Another thing is Mae West's walk. I do not know how this can be done, but I hope that somehow the Smithsonian institution comes up with an idea that will preserve that Mae West walk for posterity. But beyond that I believe Mae West's complete supremacy in her field has been due to the fact that somehow she has always suggested old-fashion sex — manhood, virility, something all men dream about but unfortunately find it necessary to rationalize about at times, with the observation that it belongs only to truck drivers.

There's a wholesomeness about Mae West's sex. It suggests the loud laughter at a Verein picnic in Schutzenpark, or on the annual excursion of the Steamfitters union. Local No. 11. There's nothing leering or sneaky about her sex.

Somehow Mae West has been able to communicate this idea for nearly 50 years in vaudeville, on the stage, and in motion pictures; giving the impression that if you even mentioned the word "deviation" she would knock you on the head with her parasol.

ROCKEFELLER WON BY A BLINTZA

A few years ago I offered a new idea to eliminate prejudice. I suggested a National Cheese Blintzes week (with sour cream), and now along comes this dynamic Republican Nelson Rockefeller who used the idea to win the election over Gov. Harriman in New York.

Mr. Rockefeller toured the lower east side of New York and proved beyond any doubt that his appreciation of blintzes with sour cream was much greater than Harriman's. In fact this young Rockefeller demonstrated he was a master in conducting a political campaign. On Rivington street he bought a salami, wholesale—a $5 salami for $3.

The New York Times reported that a jealous customer upbraided the delicatessen man, "For Rockefeller he gives discounts."

Luckily the Republicans have a Jewish attorney general, Mr. Lefkowitz, who guided Rocky directly to Ratner's dairy restaurant on Second avenue and Sixth street, where they produce the best cheese blintzes in the country, with sour cream, and when Rocky came out of Ratner's with a smile that stretched from ear

Press Gets Initial Look Inside Estate Of Gov. Rockefeller

Pocantico Hills, N.Y. — Newspaper reporters and photographers were allowed inside the closely guarded, 4,180-acre Rockefeller family estate here Sunday for the first time since it was built 66 years ago.

They were invited to photograph Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller with Kristian Rasmussen, the Norwegian retired grocer and seaman whose daughter married the governor's son Steven.

The huge estate, built by John D. Rockefeller, the governor's grandfather, includes separate homes for most of the Rockefellers. The press was allowed to see only the Dutch colonial farmhouse of Nelson Rockefeller.

to ear, he was as good as elected.

Which suggests to me it would be a good idea if I prepared a campaign menu for New York candidates for mayor, congress, senate and governor. This would enable the politicians to clear the air and get down to basic issues:

Monday: Knockwurst and sauerkraut

Tuesday: Blintzes, sour cream and a side dish of kasha varnishkass

Wednesday: Minestrone and pizza

Thursday: Corned beef and cabbage

Friday: Fish all day.

Saturday: Southern fried chicken and a side dish of chitlings

This would take care of the Germans, the Jews, the Italians, the Irish, all the other Catholics, the fancy southerners on Madison avenue, the Negroes in Harlem and finally, on Sunday, the candidate can take care of the upstate left-footers with a New England boiled dinner with two different kinds of pie for dessert.

THE CHARLOTTE COLISEUM

When Titus completed the Roman colosseum, 5,000 animals were killed as part of the dedication activities. This act was followed by 500 pairs of gladiators fighting each other to the death.

When Charlotte, N. C., dedicated its $6 million coliseum in 1956, Billy Graham, the evangelist, just made a speech.

Cyanide Poison Caused Death Of Anti-Red

Munich Police Say Stepan Bandera Did Not Die in Tumble

Munich, Germany — The Ukrainian anti-communist leader, Stepan Bandera, 50, found dead after a mysterious fall last Thursday, died of cyanide poisoning, Munich police announced Monday.

A spokesman said it appeared the noted guerrilla chief committed suicide but that the homicide squad has not completed its investigation.

Bandera's body was found in the staircase hall of his secluded Munich home. Initially, police assumed he died of internal injuries suffered in a fall heard by neighbors.

Friends of Bandera immediately said he might have been assassinated. Today, they insisted foul play was involved.

Headed Army Bandera is said to have headed an army of 200,000 Banderovici (Banderovites) fighting Soviet and Polish armies during and after World war II. Living in hide-outs most of the time, Bandera is claimed to have directed guerrilla operations inside Russia through couriers and agents smuggled behind the Iron Curtain.

The police spokesman conceded there was no motive known for a suicide but said the evidence tended to exclude murder. He said it appeared he took the poison — which causes death within a maximum of 10 seconds — when stepping out of his car, and then collapsed in the staircase hall.

Friends said his life had been in constant danger and that he also was warned once that his children would be kidnapped.

Halas Tells NFL's '60 Expansion Plans

Change in By-Laws to Clear Way

BY JOE MOOSHIL

Chicago —(AP)— The National Football league is so eager to expand by 1960 that it will even change its by-laws to suit the purpose.

George Halas, owner-coach of the Chicago Bears and chairman of the NFL expansion committee, Monday announced plans to boost the league from 12 to 14 teams by next fall.

"Can Get 10 Votes" "We know we can't get a unanimous vote to expand in our January meeting," said Halas. "Therefore, we will change the by-laws that stipulate this, and we know we can get the 10 required votes to do this."

Holding back unanimous approval for expansion is George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins. Marshall said in Washington "expansion is impractical, hasty, and definitely would hurt college football."

Halas said that he and Acting Commissioner Austin H. Gansel held separate polls and learned that 11 of 12 owners are in favor of immediate expansion. Halas said the owners also favored considering expansion to 16 teams by 1961 or 1962.

Dallas and Houston are the cities being wooed. Houston, however, must come up with a new stadium. If not, the franchise will go elsewhere, probably to Minneapolis-St. Paul.

5 Years of Planning Halas said the plans for expansion are "a culmination of five years of planning."

"Our intent," said Halas, "was to expand when competition among our clubs began to equalize itself on an extremely high level. We now have reached that plateau."

"Conditions for expansion never will be more ideal," the pro football pioneer continued. "Every team in the league is strong. There now is a sufficient backlog of experienced players available for the team in the new franchise city."

Halas went so far as to introduce the prospective owners of the proposed Dallas Turn to Page 15, Col. 6

Taylor 'Very Doubtful' for Colt Game

Fullback to Stay In Hospital Several More Days

Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay — If you could hocus pocus just one of the injured Packer players into perfect health, who would be the beneficiary of your magic?

On the basis of the 45-6 loss to the Rams in Milwaukee Sunday, the wand would have to be touched on the burned foot and hand of fullback Jim Taylor.

If the Packers needed anything Sunday, it was first downs — something to keep a drive going and thus keep the ball out of the hands of those two splendid ball-carrying maniacs, Ollie Matson and Jon Arnett.

Two Backs The Packers had only two able-bodied backs Sunday, Paul Hornung and Lew Carpenter, and the Rams merely had to concentrate on them. They still led the club to 117 yards rushing, with Hornung getting 54 and Carpenter 31.

With Taylor back in action, along with speedster Don McIlhenny, the Packers would be able to keep defenses honest. McIlhenny played little vs. the Rams due to a sore shoulder.

Coach Vince Lombardi would like to get Taylor and McIlhenny back into action for the important test against the world champion Colts in Baltimore Sunday afternoon.

Jim 'Doubtful' Lombardi said today: "Jim won't be out of the hospital until Thursday or Friday and then it's doubtful if he'll play."

Lombardi said he expects to have McIlhenny ready for the Colts, adding "that's why we rested him against the Rams."

The loss of Taylor was particularly damaging because it happened off the field. He suffered second degree burns on the Tuesday night (Oct. 6) before the San Francisco game in a home accident. And he has spent most of the time since in the hospital exposing

Vike-Beloit Frosh Game Postponed

The Lawrence-Beloit college freshman football game, originally scheduled to be played today, has been rescheduled for 3 p. m. Thursday, at Beloit.

Lawrence, which lost its opener to St. Norbert's J.V.s, will be seeking its first victory of the season.

Aaron Mathews Two White Sox teammates, catcher Sherm Lollar and right-handed pitcher Early Wynn, also were voted on the team.

4 Holdovers Picked Fox was one of four holdovers from last season's all-star squad. The other repeaters were shortstop Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs and outfielders Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves and Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants.

Oddly enough, no member of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers was chosen to either the first or second teams. The National league, however, dominated the first team with six players as compared to four American leaguers.

The remainder of the team included first basemen Orlando Cepeda of San Francisco, third basemen Eddie Mathews of Milwaukee, outfielder Al Kaline of the Detroit Tigers and left-handed pitcher Johnny Antonelli of San Francisco.

Aaron was the second highest vote-getter with 163 followed by Wynn with 125. Then came Mathews with 119; Mays, 118; Lollar, 112; Banks, 88; Antonelli, 86 and Cepeda and Kaline, 72 each.

The balloting for shortstop produced the closest race. Banks drew three more votes than Luis Aparicio of the White Sox, who polled 85.

The most one-sided voting was for second base. Johnny Temple of the Cincinnati Reds was named on four ballots and trailed Fox by 161.

Those besides Aparicio and Temple selected to the second team were: First base — Frank Robinson, Reds (38); third base — Ken Boyer, Cardinals (24); outfield — Harvey Kuenn, Tigers (44); Rock Colavito, Indians (40); and Vada Pinson, Reds (12) and Jim Landis, White Sox (12); catcher — Del Crandall, Braves (28); left-handed pitcher — Warren Spahn, Braves (78) and righthanded pitcher — Sam Jones, Giants (28).

Report Says Crisler Will Accept New Pro League's Top Post

Detroit —(AP)— Fritz Crisler will announce later this week, probably Friday, that he is accepting the job of commissioner of the new American Football league, a reliable source reported Monday.

The source told the Associated Press the University of Michigan athletic director will sign a 5-year contract for about $60,000 a year, plus fringe benefits.

Crisler refused comment on the latest report.

Badgers Jump Into 12th in Grid Ratings

LSU, Northwestern And Texas Remain In Top 3 Spots

By The Associated Press

The University of Wisconsin, in the wake of its 25-16 victory over Iowa, was ranked twelfth today in the Associated Press poll measuring the nation's college football teams.

The Badgers failed to attract any first place votes but did collect 170 points. They have a 3-1 season record. Last week, the UW fell out of the top 20.

Powerful Louisiana State held its so far unshakable position at the top of the list for the 11th consecutive week.

The Bengals from the Bayou compiled a whopping 1,238 votes from the sports writers and sportscasters voting in the weekly poll. LSU has been in first place since early last season.

Coach Paul Dietzel's club drew 68 of the 144 first place votes—almost as many as the other schools combined.

10 For First

The points are tallied on the basis of 10 for first place, nine for second and so on down the line.

Louisiana State barely beat Kentucky, 9-0, last Saturday, but the voters still gave the Tigers a comfortable margin over second-place Northwestern, which collected 1,171 points.

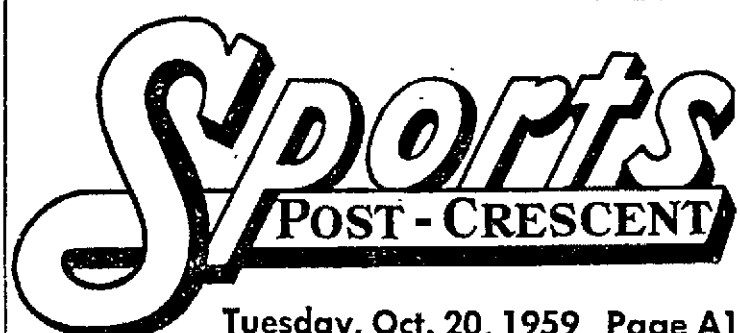

The Wildcats turned back Michigan, 20-7, last Saturday. They managed 23 first place votes in holding down their second place spot.

Texas completed the big three—the same order as a week ago—by drawing 1,010 points. The Longhorns, who edged Arkansas, 13-12, in their last effort, were the only others

Gillman Praises Resolution and Desire of Rams

Los Angeles —The Los Angeles Rams who lost their first two games of the National Football league season hardly resemble the winning Rams of today.

Coach Sid Gillman told the Football Writers association Monday:

"As long as I've been in football, I've never known a team that has played with such resolution and desire as the Rams in their last two games. They beat the Chicago Bears and the Green Bay Packers. Both were tremendous team victories."

"The thing that stands out above everything else is desire."

1-1 conference marks—will be battling for survival in the Western conference race. A team with two losses has never won or shared the title.

Blanks Purdue The Badgers are both tough and alert on the ground. Although Iowa's Olen Treadway ran the Badgers in circles in completing 26 of 41 passes Saturday, his team took a beating, 25-16.

Ohio State, without a dangerous passing attack, blanked Purdue last weekend, 15-0, only a week after the Boiler-makers humiliated Wisconsin in a muddy 21-0 decision.

Wisconsin and Ohio State played to a 7-7 tie at Columbus a year ago. The Badgers haven't been able to beat a Buckeye team since 1946.

The Badgers learned Monday that end Jim Holmes and tackle Terry Huxhold probably will be sidelined with injuries for the Ohio State game. Huxhold may not see much more action this season.

A Slim Chance Holmes bruised his knee and missed the entire second half of the Iowa game. He was on crutches Monday, but trainer Walt Bakke said there was a slim chance he might be ready for Saturday.

BY GEOFFREY GOULD

Washington —(AP)— The Washington Senators won't move to Minneapolis this year.

Club owner Calvin Griffith announced Monday night his decision to remain in the capital, where the Senators have been since 1901.

His reason: He found out that some American league club owners refused to go along with the move. It would only take three "no" votes to block the transfer.

Griffith did a tightrope act last year, too, about moving to Minneapolis. The Minnesota city has been trying to attract the Senators for several years, and has offered sizable guarantees.

Leaves Door Open

Griffith said he agreed with his advisers that the latest Minneapolis offer "is for the best interests of all stockholders" of the club. Thus he seemed to be leaving the door open for another try next year to shift the franchise.

Minneapolis, Griffith said, offered a minimum net profit of $430,000 a year for five years, a total of $2,150,000. The last-place Senators drew 615,000 fans here this year. Griffith said the club lost money.

Griffith had Lawyer C. Lee DeOrsey review the Minneapolis offer. DeOrsey's recommendation was to either sell the club or, if he intended to remain in baseball, accept the Minneapolis bid with certain amendments.

Griffith said in a statement: "1. My stock is not for sale. 2. I have every intention to remain in baseball." He is the

'Too Tense,' Claims Vince

Bays' Poor Play Sunday Follows Pattern of Non-League Season

BY ART DALEY

Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay — Tuesday Quarterback: The Packers' loss to the Rams seemed to follow a pattern that had a start in the non-league season.

Coach Vince Lombardi said he felt the Packers were too tense against the Rams. That had a familiar ring — all the way out to Bangor, Me.

The Bays had just finished three tough games—a last-second loss to the Bears and consecutive wins over the 49ers and Eagles. Now it was on to Bangor to play the Giants for the fourth game. The Packers were shut out, 14-0. Vince said the Packers never did loosen up—"they were too tense."

3 Tough Games The Bays took the field Sunday with three tough games (and all victories) under their belts. They were flat and tense again. And those two "fourth" games were the only times the Bays were held without a touchdown this season! The Ram score was 45 to 2 field goals.

Coincidence, just plain fiction or truth, the Packers' rude setback indicates how difficult it is to build up a winning streak in the balance ed National Football league. Don't forget, through last Sunday, the Packers were the only team to win three straight games this far.

That's still an amazing feat—especially in view of the club's dismal showing of a year ago.

Despite the lopsided score, the Packers' inability to control the ball was their downfall. Only in the second quarter did they get a good look at the label on the ball. They had the pigskin for 19 plays against the Rams' 11 and outscored the Rams 6 to 3.

Other 3 Quarters In the other three quarters the Rams ran off 53 plays, the Packers 34. They outscored our men, 42-0.

Green Bay couldn't get a first down in the first quarter. We had the ball for three series, which included three incomplete passes, 15 yards gained in six rushes and three punts. One of the punts was blocked for a safety. The Packers got into Ram territory four times all day. They pierced the seven in the second quarter and came out with three points. They reached the 39 in the same period and added another three.

They advanced to the promised land twice in the fourth quarter, reaching the two before blowing the chance on Lamar McHan's interception with the score, 23-6, and the 41 in the final moments on Bart Starr's 16-yard pass to A. D. Williams.

The irony Sunday was that the Packers had their first 50 per cent passing day on an even 14 completions out of 28 attempts. McHan had 59 per cent on 13 hits in 22 tries for 148 yards. Starr, playing the last eight minutes, had one for five and Paul Hornung 0 for 1.

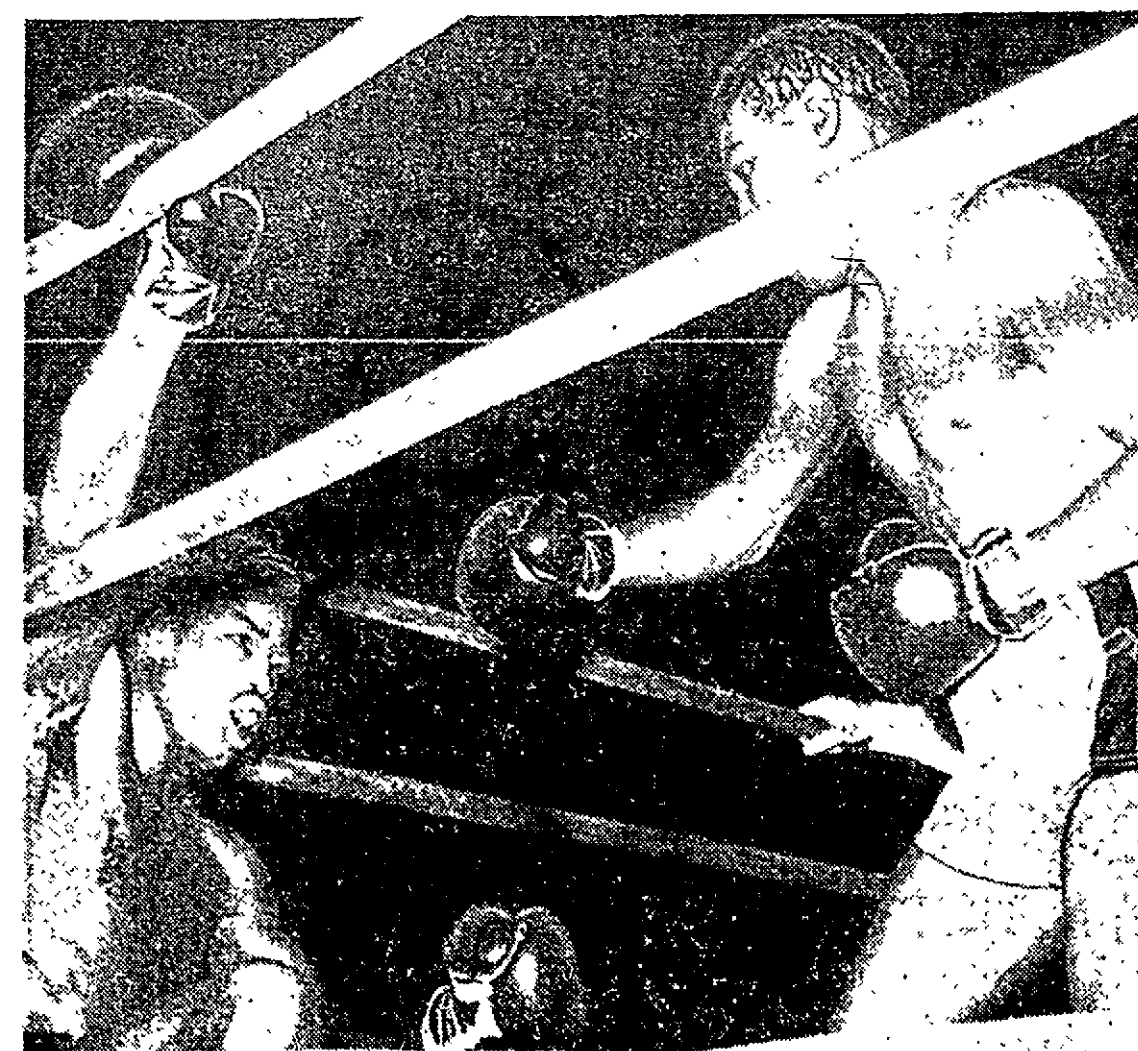

McHan made considerable use of the "safety" pitch to Hornung who trails along late as a precaution against long receivers being covered. Paul grabbed off five for 58 yards.

Davey Moore Favored in Non-Title Go

London — Bobby Neill has fought against long odds ever since he was left crippled and unconscious in a road crash nine years ago.

So the news that he's a 3-1 underdog in tonight's non-title fight against world featherweight champion Davey Moore at Wembley stadium doesn't perturb him one bit.

Neill steps into the ring for the 10-rounder as British featherweight champion.

"Doctors told me I would never fight again after that crash in 1950," the quiet Scott said. "I lay in a plaster cast for 18 months."

"But I recovered and fought again."

Neill, 26, boxing with one leg shorter than the other by about three quarters of an inch because of an accident, is a hard hitter who tries to soften his opponent with soft-fisted punching. He's won 26 of his 29 fights.

Bobcats Stress Defense in Early Drills

Mayasich Pleased At Skaters Hustle for Position

Green Bay — Defense is the dominant theme as the Green Bay Bobcats, with one eye on their Central Hockey league opener against Minneapolis here Nov. 13, move into their second week of practice.

"We've been stressing defensive play," Player - Coach Johnny Mayasich revealed. "We want to see how they will react on the 1-and-1, in a referendum, authorized the city to convey to the Dodgeville 185 acres in Chavez ravine. It also provided Los Angeles would use its best efforts to acquire and convey to the club more land to make a total of 300 acres.

Kirshbaum contended the ordinance would hand over lands to a private corporation "engaged in a private venture for its own private profit," in disregard of a public purpose deed restriction.

"Must the laws be trampled upon, and the legal rights of its citizens destroyed to make the entrance of a baseball club possible?" one of his appeals asked. "Will not others claim with equal impunity that they too are entitled to the same exception now so generously heaped upon a baseball corporation?"

The U. S. Supreme Court dismissed without comment Monday the appeals of two taxpayers that would have blocked the city of Los Angeles from turning over the site to the Dodgers.

Work on grading the site started last month after the California Supreme Court upheld the transaction.

Dodger owner Walter O'Malley must renegotiate with the Los Angeles Coliseum commission, however, for use of the big stadium for baseball in 1960.

The appeals were filed in the name of Louis Kirshbaum and the third in the name of Julius Ruben.

U. S. Supreme Court Dismisses Appeal Of 2 Taxpayers

Los Angeles — The world champion Los Angeles Dodgers have cleared the last legal barrier against construction of their baseball stadium in Chavez ravine.

May Revise System

Colts Convinced That Bears Stole Their Offensive Signals

Baltimore — The Baltimore Colts are convinced the Chicago Bears stole their offensive signals, the Baltimore News-Post reported Monday.

"They have a better play book on us than we do ourselves," said quarterback John Unitas.

"I would take an oath that they got it," declared center "Buzz" Nutter.

"I got to think that there is somebody close to our team, some individual that we trust, who is telling the Bears everything we have," agreed Coach "Weeb" Ewbank.

Guard Alex Sandusky said the Bears in Sunday's game shifted defenses correctly on 90 per cent of signals changed by Unitas after lining up. "Do you think that's pure luck?" Sandusky asked.

Unitas also felt it was too much coincidence and changed the Colt system in the second half. They scored twice in the last quarter to win, 21-7.

Ewbank is so concerned that the Colt system might have gotten so spread around that he is considering revising it completely for Sunday's game with Green Bay.

Dickens Chides Club For Blowing Chances

Chicago — Midwest football briefs:

Indiana — Coach Phil Dickens chided his Hoosiers for missing out on five scoring chances against Nebraska. "We aren't the kind of team that can afford to pass up a chance," said Dickens.

Purdue — With Ross Fichtner and Bernie Allen sidelined because of injuries, Coach Jack Moellenkopf indicated junior Maury Guttman would get the starting quarterback job against Iowa Saturday.

Minnesota — Minor injuries plagued the Gophers. Six of the seven linemen who started against Illinois came to practice with various ailments.

Ohio State — The Buckeyes held a "no rough stuff" drill with the reserves executing Wisconsin plays. Ohio State came out of the Purdue victory with a minimum of injuries.

Northwestern — Sophomore Bob Eickhoff's injured shoulder is responding and the diminutive quarterback should be ready for the Notre Dame game. Halfback Ron Burton remains a questionable starter because of an injured ankle.

Illinois — A minor injury to halfback Johnny Counts has either senior Wayne Jones or the Illini worried. Counts sprained his big toe and although it will not keep him out of action against Penn State, it might impair his speed.

Notre Dame — The Irish are having fullback troubles. Jim Crotty missed the Michigan State game with a sprained ankle and his fill-in, Frank Gargiulo, has a pulled leg muscle.

Trailing 18 seconds behind Hammond was Mark Asman of Kaukauna. Max Harn and Mike Barrington of New London finished fourth and fifth respectively. Jerry Jakl of Kaukauna was sixth.

Blackbourn Looks For Jinx Smasher

Warriors Moving Ball as Well As Foes but Mistakes Hurt

Milwaukee — Coach "Liz" Blackbourn is looking for a jinx smasher for his Marquette university football team.

The Warriors have gone without a victory this year, Blackbourn says, despite the fact that they've been moving the ball as well as their opponents.

In the five games this season here's how the statistics stack up:

A total of eight passes were intercepted and four of these were run back for touchdowns and two others set up scores that came a few plays later.

Blocked punts

Two blocked punts, one of which gave Pittsburgh a 21-15 victory and the other lined up a touchdown for Wisconsin.

There were eight fumbles. Five were lost and three helped the enemy on to touchdowns.

But what really bothers Blackbourn is that Marquette beat Pittsburgh on first downs, 25-9, only to lose when one interception was run back for 53 yards for a touchdown and a blocked punt put the easterners six yards from the winning touchdown.

In the game with Detroit, a 26-yard interception return gave the winners their first score of the game. A fumble by the Warriors set up the second touchdown.

The Wisconsin game saw the Warriors have one interception taken for a touchdown, another set up a score and a fumble stop a Warrior drive.

72-Yard Interception

Marquette was driving for a touchdown against Indiana when a 7-yard interception return shattered another chance.

The Warriors were leading College of the Pacific, 7-6, last Saturday when a fumble by Si Woods on his 35 put COP in a good position to tally the winning points.

Blackbourn believes, though that it can't last forever. The team will have to start hanging onto the ball sooner or the wounds so that they'll heal quicker. There was danger of infection earlier.

Actually, the Ram game developed no serious injuries, although the Bays were hurt twice in the same spot — defensive end, Nate Borden, of course, wasn't able to play due to an injury on the last defense play of the Lion game. Jim Temp played his position capably vs. the 49ers and until the first play of the Ram game when he hurt his shoulder. Ken Beck, the last defensive line sub, played the second half for Temp.

Temp has a sore shoulder muscle, Borden, who ran some last week, expects to be ready for the Colts. Ron Kramer has a slight ankle sprain. They should be in good working order for Baltimore.

Kramer Pleased

Kramer, incidentally, was pleased to note that his knee held up under the blast of the Rams. "I'd been wondering about it," he said.

Kramer has reason to remember the Rams. As a rookie in '57, Ron was kicked in the back in the first La game in Milwaukee and missed the following Sunday. In the replay in Los Angeles in December, Kramer broke his leg below the knee. Now the ankle. This time, though, he isn't likely to miss the next game.

The Packers whipped back into action today with plenty of enthusiasm, anxious to profit by their mistakes vs. the Rams.

"We did a lot of good things Sunday but we couldn't later and see that things turn out in its favor.

During Monday's practice session, the Warriors spent two hours on running and passing with a heavy contact session promised for today. Guard John Blyth and half-back Jim Webster were the only players nursing injuries. Blyth probably will miss next weekend's game with Boston college but Webster, out with a wrist sprain, is expected to be ready for action.

Charley Scott Posts TKO Win Over No. 1 Welter Challenger

Philadelphia — Charley Scott, a Johnny-come-lately to welterweight ranking, is ready for champion Don Jordan, but the big question is whether Jordan is ready for Scott.

The 23-year-old Scott, who was ready to give up boxing a year or so ago, earned a shot at the title here Monday night with a technical knockout victory over Garnet "Sugar" Hart. Scott got the job done in 28 seconds of the ninth round of a scheduled 12-round bout.

Telegraphs Offer

Promoter Herman Taylor twice has telegraphed a $75,000 offer to Don Neseth, manager of Jordan. He has yet to get an answer.

The battle at Convention hall here Monday night was sensational to say the least. The two bitter North Philadelphia rivals slammed each other with every punch in the book, a disappointing crowd of 4,930 screamed with delight from the opening bell.

Hart, 146, the No. 1 welterweight challenger, came out in the first round bent on settling an old score — a knockdown by Scott in a local gym three years ago. He smashed Scott with savage left hooks and pounded his right to the face. Scott was groggy but lasted the round. Apparently that was it for Hart. Scott who weighed 146, had taken his best and was still around to talk about it. Although the 22-year-old Hart kept bailing, Scott was the master of the rest of the way. He forced Hart to fight inside where the long right hand that kayaked 21 of 28 victims was least effective.

State Open To be Held At Tuckaway

Milwaukee — Milwaukee Tuckaway will be the site of the 1960 state open tournament, the Wisconsin Professional Golfers association announced Monday.

The meet, scheduled for the third week of August, will feature 72 holes of medal play. The State PGA senior championship and the regular PGA meet will be held at the same time over a 36-hole two-day route.

Members elected Gordon Watson of Milwaukee Brynwood, to a third term as president.

Others reelected included George Vitense, Madison, secretary-treasurer; Bob Whyte, Kenosha, vice president at large; Alex Wilmott, Beloit, southwest section vice president, and John Erickson, Menasha, northeast section vice president.

Dick Swift, Milwaukee; Joe Paletti, Port Washington and Lou Warobick, Manitowoc, were elected members of the board.

Halas Reveals NFL's Plans To Expand franchise at his press conference Monday. They are oilman Clint Murchison, Jr., and Atty. Bedford Wynne. Halas also revealed the man behind Houston interests is Craig Cullinan who deals in oil investments.

Murchison said he felt Dallas is ready for pro football after having had years of it on television. In 1952, the Dallas Texans operated for one year and folded after losing something like $200,000.

The NFL's plan to move immediately into Dallas and Houston clash with those of the American Football league which plans to begin operations next year with the two Texas cities as key bases.

'Serious Mistake'

Lamar Hunt, Dallas oilman who is organizing the new league, said the NFL's plans do not "change our plans in the least."

In a report from Dallas, Hunt said "the NFL is making a serious mistake in bringing a club here — the competition is likely to cause both to lose money whereas one club here could operate profitably."

Hunt called the NFL's proposed move "sabotage."

"If you don't think it is sabotage," said Hunt, "consider that one of the NFL club owners made me and Bud Adams, the Houston franchise owner, a proposition to give up our league and take the Dallas and Houston franchises into the NFL."

Adams said if the National Football league wants a fight "then we can fight back."

"I'm not against expansion in the NFL," he said, "but I don't think they should come into cities like Houston and Dallas, which aren't big enough to support two pro football teams."

"I'm dedicated to the new league, however," said Adams. "I think there's plenty of room for two leagues."

Adams said he plans to spend $150,000 to expand the seating of Jeppesen stadium to 40,000 for the 1960 season. Adams holds a 5-year lease on the stadium.

"I have my stadium," said Adams. "The other group doesn't."

'Bobo' Olson Wants Second Moore Bout

majority stockholder. DeOrsey himself reportedly wanted to buy the stock if Griffith sold out.

During the World Series, Griffith said, he made an informal vote count of the other clubs and thought he had enough to assure the move.

"Upon advice of counsel," he added, "I have recanvassed the club owners and I am surprised to learn of the change in thinking. I now find that I will be unable to obtain the necessary votes to move. I have contacted at least three other clubs who have assured me they would vote adversely."

He didn't identify the clubs. The New York Yankees have made it known they oppose the move. Others thought to be against it are Chicago, Baltimore, Detroit and Cleveland.

One factor in the thinking of these club owners is said to be they feel it would be wrong to leave the nation's capital without a team representing the national pastime.

Another reason: For two years congress has been looking into the question of whether baseball should be subject to antitrust laws. Some club owners feel that if the Senators moved out it might have an adverse effect in this matter.

Olson, on the comeback trail for the second time, has won five in a row. Four were knockouts over unranked opponents. The other was a close decision over Rory Calhoun.

Classical Lute Has Colorful History

On a one-man crusade to bring the sounds of the ancient lute to the contemporary public is Julian Bream, young Englishman appearing in the Artist series concert at 8:15 p. m. Thursday in the Lawrence Memorial chapel.

In the Sixteenth Century, wherever music was heard in solo, or in accompaniment to the voice, it was generally the lute that was employed. In England alone, between 1550 and 1620, more than two thousand pieces for lute were composed.

The Arabian "Al-ud" (the "instrument of wood") was first brought to Spain by the Moors, and soon became known in all the countries of Western Europe. Its earliest beginnings, however, go back to the Egyptians. By the time of Chaucer it had reached England and was played "both the night and day" by the musicians in the Pardoners' tale. In 1370, the painters who executed the paintings on the walls of the Chapter house of Westminster Abbey represented the angels playing upon lutes. And, for the next three centuries in every country the lute was as familiar an object to the artist as it was to the musician.

Early Lutes
The early lutes were strung with four strings and played with a plectrum. By the end of the Fourteenth Century the strings in each "course" were doubled in unison or octaves. In the Fifteenth Century it became customary to strike the strings with the fingers instead of the plectrum. At once a vast range of contrapuntal

A Young Englishman Who is crusading to bring the sounds of the lute to the contemporary concert stage, Julian Bream, will be the first musician to appear in the Lawrence college Artist series. His concert will be at 8:15 p.m. Thursday in the Lawrence chapel.

Shoe Break Becoming Office Institution

The familiar "coffee break" now an American office institution, is being joined by the "shoe break."

More and more usual is the sight of a secretary arriving for work in spike-heeled shoes which she changes for turn but comfortable flats kept in her desk drawer. When she goes out to lunch, on go the high heels. When she comes back, on go the flats. When she goes home she changes once more to the high heels.

Recent research by foot specialists reveals that a change of shoes during the day rests the feet, and since aching feet can affect the whole nervous system, the change results in a general pick-up of energy.

The average salesgirl covers the distance from Alaska to Hawaii during a year's work, reports the National Shoe Institute. The average letter-carrier could walk around the earth at the equator in the distance his route takes him every year. And the average housewife walks miles every day in the course of her household chores. For all such people the "shoe break" is recommended as an effective antidote for fatigue.

The dance will culminate the day's activities, which will begin with the homecoming parade in the morning and the game in the afternoon. Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 12 for alumni and students.

The homecoming queen and her court will preside at the dance and will present trophies to the float winners. This is the first time the school has had a queen for its homecoming activities.

Jim Choudoir is chairman of the entertainment committee and will be assisted by Jeff Deal, Steffie LeVee, Lynn Kellogg, Pat Mathews, Bob Mitchell, Sandy Hoersch, Bill McKenny, Mary Ellen Jacobson, Ralph Hayden, Peter Ryerson, Diana Rosera and Donna Tews. Swiss Instructor Holds Crafts Class

Her experience as an arts and crafts instructor in private girls' schools in Switzerland will be used by Mrs. Claus Ludeke, who is teaching a creative craft workshop for grade school girls at the YMCA.

The 9-session class is conducted from 3:30 to 5 p.m. on Thursdays and limited to 20 young girls. "I want to begin with simple things, so the girls will develop a feeling of achievement," Mrs. Ludeke explained. "My idea is to encourage them to use their imaginations; I'll show them techniques and they can do what they please," she added with a slight European accent. "In Switzerland we made papier mache' puppets and gave a little play," the instructor said. Her class plans may include the puppet work, as well as printing material, drawing, painting wood carving and stencils.

"I am thinking of making useful things with mosaics, like ash trays, dishes and trays for presents," the teacher explained. Another class activity will be working with felt and decorating it for clothes hangers and other items.

Picture Frames

At the first class on Thursday the girls brought snapshots of themselves and made decorative frames to display them.

Asked if she was planning to make Halloween items, Mrs. Ludeke answered "I am not familiar with the holiday, but we can make something for it." Decorative Christmas ornaments, chenille craft and coasters made from canning lids trimmed with cutouts from greeting cards also are among her plans for the class.

Mrs. Ludeke and her husband, an electrical engineer who had lived in Switzerland, are the parents of a daughter, Barbara, 21. "She can't speak English," her mother laughed, "so when I have a baby sister, I have a little Swiss friend come over, so she doesn't feel so strange."

The instructor, who attended a school of applied arts and crafts near Zurich in Switzerland, taught at the exclusive boarding schools attended by children of the international set.

New York Hairdresser Prefers Yogurt to Lotion

The newest culture to go to the head is yogurt. At least one hairdresser prefers it to home permanent wave lotion to control the hair, especially fine locks.

"I've been experimenting with yogurt for a long time now," explains V. George of New York, "and I have seen tremendous improvement in the hair of people who have had several permanent waves with this method instead of the regular lotion."

George uses it when he winds the hair for the permanent wave.

"The yogurt slows up the entire action of the permanent wave. It takes longer, but it doesn't shock the hair as regular lotion does," he explains.

"Many hairdressers use milk instead of lotion," he says, "and it isn't because I'm on Fifth avenue that I've switched to yogurt. It just seems to give the hair more body than anything else."

George believes that he

This Chic hairdo is the result of a permanent wave that uses yogurt instead of permanent waving lotion.

gets a more uniform wave with his method because the action begins when it is applied. He says:

"There is a difference in winding time of about 15 minutes from bottom to top winding, and there is bound to be that much difference in the wave when it is completed — tighter and looser spots.

"Yogurt on the other hand has a more uniform action. It seems to revitalize the hair follicle, rectifying hair dryness, hair bruises or damage. The hair seems to have far more gloss after the use of yogurt, is more pliable to work with after the yogurt treatment."

Yogurt, a milk to which a culture has been added to create its special properties, is not difficult to find. George gives a blunt haircut to those with fine hair.

"It gives the hair more body," he says, "than a hairdo that is tapered, which is likely to create flying ends."

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Many a new mother is tempted to bundle a baby tightly, thinking this will keep him warm. But tight bundling restricts movements, possibly circulation. Best dressing guides to keep a "rock-a-baby" comfy: loose shirts and wrappers . . . loosely arranged receiving blankets . . . and at least 2 fingers of space between baby and his diaper.

Many a new mother who's bottle feeding her baby is tempted to urge him to take more formula than he may want, simply because she can see how much is left in the bottle. Best rule of bottle I know: Give baby the same right the breast-fed baby has, the right to stop when he's had enough.

Off to a good start. When baby is ready to start on cereal, you can smooth the introduction with Gerber Baby Cereals. The texture is creamy smooth to the tongue, the flavors are pleasantly bland . . . just right for baby's untiried taste buds.

For baby's nutritional well-being, all 5 are enriched with iron, calcium and B-vitamins. Most important, they're thoroughly pre-cooked and twice tested for digestibility. Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, Mixed Cereal . . . and High Protein Cereal with 35% protein.

Learning to swallow cereal will be easier for baby if you make the mixture quite soupy at first. About 1 lb. of cereal to 4 or 5 of liquid. Thicken mixture when baby learns the knack of swallowing.

Getting at the meat of the matter. Special meats come early in the modern baby's diet because they're rich in the complete proteins baby needs for growth and strength. Gerber Strained Meats give your baby high-quality protein in pleasant-tasting, easy-to-digest form. Made from selected, lean Armour cuts, they're specially processed to remove most of the fat — 8 varieties — all pure meat with just enough broth left in to smooth the texture. Look for Exceptions To All Bridge Rules

U. S. Masters Team Champion

"Don't waste your high cards," the beginner is told. "There's no advantage in winning a trick twice over. hearts. If East is wondering when the hostess is going to bring out the coffee, he will "automatically" play a low heart at the first trick. This automatic play will end the rubber and bring on the coffee, but East will have no reason to rejoice.

The defenders are sure to get one trump, one heart, and one diamond. They can defeat the contract only if they can also get a club trick.

See how it works out if West is allowed to win the first trick. West shifts at once to the queen of clubs, and South wins with the king. Declarer draws two rounds of trumps and leads diamonds to knock out the ace. West cannot afford to lead another club since that would give South a free finesse.

The result is that South has time to discard his low clubs on dummy's good diamonds. South makes his contract and wins the rubber.

Must Waste Ace

East must waste the ace of hearts at the first trick to defeat the contract. East then returns a club. South wins with the king, and West is able to keep his queen and jack of clubs.

South draws two rounds of trumps and forces out the ace of diamonds. West can afford to return the queen of clubs to drive out declarer's ace. Now when declarer leads a third round of diamonds from the dummy East ruffs with queen of trumps and leads a club. The defenders thus get their club tricks, defeating the contract.

Answer: Bid two spades. Your hand is worth only one bid, and you must choose between the raise and a response of one notrump. The raise is a better description of your hand and also may help partner bid a game if he has a strong hand with a long but broken spade suit.

Secretaries Who Sympathize Want to be Peach's Sugar

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I've never taken sides in a newspaper argument. It's rather like a back-fence fight. But I couldn't let that letter signed "Secretary To A Peach" go by. It's obvious that the secretary is in love with the Peach. She hates it when his wife phones because she's jealous.

I'm a secretary to a Peach, too. But I'm interested only in doing a competent job and I don't give a hoot how many times a day his wife phones him. In my opinion, this should be filed under "Business — His and Hers" and a good secretary knows what to keep her nose out of.

I know several secretaries who would love to be the sugar and cream to the Peach they work for. One of the first signs is "sympathizing" with the Peach because his Old Battle Axe bothers him too much. — No Office Wife.

Dear No Office Wife: Welcome to the "back-fence fight" — and thank you for your contribution.

I heard from many secretaries — and most of them were four-square behind you for the reasons you stated. The bulk of the mail, however, came from the wives of The Peaches — wanting to know what city the letter came from.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Rah Rah Rah to you, Doll. I loved your answer to the woman whose husband forced

Our Children

Dancing Teaches Rhythmic Motion

BY ANGELO PATRI

Questions about the desirability of teaching children to dance are coming in again and to each I say, "By all means teach the boys and girls to dance."

Many children of this time do not get enough exercise to strengthen and develop their bodies and dancing is a wonderful way of doing that. Children are set to rhythm.

Each has his own and if he is trained so that this inherent rhythm of movement is made important in his mind and body his whole being is lifted to a higher, happier and more successful level of living. Dancing, properly taught, at the right time, accents this rhythm and allows it to function.

Reduces Fatigue
Rhythmic movement reduced fatigue and makes what could be hard unpleasant work easier and pleasant. We have, all of us, seen the "clumsy worker," and regretted his lack of skill. But few of us remembered that what he needed was training and practice in rhythmic motion.

Beginning with the young ones who are just learning that they have feet that can be used to widen their world should be given an opportunity daily, to dance to music or to songs with marked rhythm. No instruction at this time. We are helping the child to use his gift of rhythmic power.

He will prance to a march, swirl round and round to a waltz, circle about himself until he sits down smartly. He will rise again and continue his happy trip to some pleasant place in his imagination. And he will be gaining accuracy of movement, ease of motion, a sense of well being.

Later on when the child is nearing school age he can begin lessons if that is what he wants and his parents agree. By and by the boys and girls will learn folk dancing in school, a far better way of exercising than the old up-down, one-two sort of calisthenics. To really function for health of mind and body exercise must be free of the dullness of futile movements and outside direction. To truly function it must be pleasurable. Dancing is always pleasurable.

Angelo Patri offers readers leaflets on a variety of subjects concerning child training. If you would like to have his leaflet P-29, "Uniforms Are Not Introductions," send 10 cents in coin to him, in care of this paper, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Parents are Key in Fighting Obscenity

Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield has reported that the Post Office department drive against dealers in mail-order obscenity is making good progress.

The Post Office began its intense campaign after alerting the nation's parents to the shocking fact that debauched merchants of filth, striving to expand their lucrative business, were concentrating on children as the victims.

The Post Office department estimates that as many as one million minor children this year will receive obscene folders and letters in the mail soliciting them to buy filthy materials and photographs.

Poisons Mind

When a smut merchant "hooks" a child, he continues to poison the child's mind by persuading him to buy increasingly vile material, much as dope peddlers work, postal inspectors state.

"In the final analysis," says Summerfield, "the result of our efforts to stamp out this vicious crime will be determined by the action taken by the parents of America. Both prosecutors and the courts admit their actions are influenced by the number and character of public complaints."

Since the Post Office cannot and will not open first class mail, it must depend upon parents to let it know when obscene material appears in the family mail box. Parents who find such mail are urged to take these steps:

1. Save all the material, including the envelope and all enclosures.
2. Send or give this material to your local postmaster.

Arrests Increase

Over the past six months, the post office has received increasing numbers of complaints from indignant citizens, with the result that the number of arrests on obscene mail charges has steadily risen.

Recently, for example, complaints from citizens in 15 states led to the indictment of two Los Angeles men on obscene mail charges involving the mailing of at least 15,000 solicitations. The men were indicted by a Federal Grand jury at St. Paul, Minn.

Parents can also help, Summerfield points out, by supporting the closing of loopholes and strengthening of legislation in this field; helping to mobilize community support behind adequate law enforcement of local ordinances and state laws; and urging maximum enforcement everywhere of federal legislation covering the mailing of obscene materials to children.

"If all of us work together in these ways," says the postmaster general, "we are certain in time to win a complete victory against this violation of the decency and dignity of our homes—a victory for our children and their future in a better America."

Whether or not you can achieve happiness with this writer is up to you. A comparison of your writings reveals that emotionally you control the situation.

Office Shelving at Home

The part of the basement that's remodelled into a recreation room provides a new place for activities there isn't room for upstairs. And it can also provide storage space for possessions there isn't room for upstairs right where they're handy—the magazines that pile up month after month before everyone's had time to read them, sports equipment that's hard to store, hobby extras, container for big flowers.

Here's an idea for equipping the room with plenty of attractive shelf space inexpensively. Buy units of office shelving and paint them bright colors, perhaps two or three colors to a unit. Steel frames makes this shelving really rugged—sometimes they're guaranteed to hold 300 pounds to a shelf. A screwdriver is the only tool needed to put them together and shelves can be located at any height.

Try out new furniture arrangement ideas the easy way—on paper, with Elizabeth Hillyer's FURNITURE ARRANGEMENT KIT. Everything you need is included—floor plan paper, 126 furniture cut-outs, full instructions and suggestions. All for 50 cents sent with your request to Miss Hillyer in care of this newspaper. Find Car Police Believe Linked to Tavern Robbery

New London — A pink and white automobile believed linked to a tavern holdup at Black Creek was found by New London police about 5:30 p.m. Monday on County Trunk S near the city limits.

The keys were in the ignition.

The car, owned by Earl J. Kerrigan, Shiocton, was reported stolen sometime Sunday night or early Monday morning from Shiocton.

Outagamie County Sheriff Robert Heinritz and Lt. Jack Zuelzke believe the car may have been stolen by two gunmen who robbed the White Birch tavern in Black Creek of about $150 early Monday morning.

The men, armed with a high powered rifle and a pistol, wore grotesque masks when they entered the tavern. A customer, Mrs. Roy Fischer, Black Creek, was slugged, but not seriously hurt, during the holdup.

ADA Says Voters to Have Little to Choose From in '60 Elections

Washington — (AP) — Americans for Democratic Action says voters will have little to choose from in the presidential elections of 1960.

In a weekend report on the last session of congress, the organization said that Democratic leaders had surrendered to President Eisenhower. It termed the session a failure.

As a result, ADA continued, the two parties have records that give voters little choice. The Eisenhower administration has grudgingly come to terms with some of the changes wrought by the New Deal but steadfastly refuses to move in new directions, ADA said.

"The Democrats pay lip service to the needs of the present but are unwilling to move much beyond the lines drawn by their most conservative members."

This Man Keeps Young by Being an Organ Grinder

Dallas, Texas — (AP) — R. E. Swain, 66 years young, says the way to keep from getting old is to buy a hurdy-gurdy and go into the organ-grinding business.

He reached down and petted his monkey, then watched as she took coins from children from the chicken business six years ago, decided to have a try at organ-grinding.

"I've been show minded all my life. I used to work in the old dramatic tent show business."

"I've got nine grandchildren and I sure do like to see them laugh and play. So I decided to try this."

Few Left

"There aren't very many organ grinders left. For one thing, no one makes hurdy-gurdys any more. They stopped making them in 1930. You have to find an old one and when they break down, it's hard to get them fixed."

"Young folk don't like to take up the business. They all want to move too fast."

Neenah — Percy Karnopp year for fair sex keggers on thundered a 681 women's national honor count, probably the highest women's series ever rolled in the Twin Cities, in the Tri-City Women's Major league Monday night at Lakewood Lanes.

The only known higher score in the area was a 699 Karnopp by Ev Perrine at Appleton a couple of seasons ago. The previous best in Neenah-Menasha was a 675 by Percy Resch at Muench's during the 1957-58 campaign.

Mrs. Karnopp, winner of the class C singles championship when the state women's tournament was held here in 1956, included a big 258 series in her giant threesome. She opened with a 226 and had a 197 in the middle game. The 258 was the top effort of the

Second 258 Game
The 681 series was about 100 pins over her previous peak set, rolled a year ago. The 258 tied her personal high game. She posted a similar total in winning the state tournament at Kenosha in 1951.

Mrs. Karnopp bowls for the first place Joyce Mover team which clouted a king-sized, 947 scratch game, also a record or near-mark, and a 2,653 series.

The honor series was the second of the season on Twin City alleys, the previous one, a 604, was rolled by Verna Drucks in the Tri-City league on Sept. 14.

Bowls 588 Trio
Runnerup honors went to Millie Stelow with a 588 series, good for high honors on many nights. The second best game was Shirley Palesch's 236. The former had a 223 game in her 588 set and the latter finished with a 562 count.

Other high scores included Janet Runge 559, Lorraine Blohm, 532, Verna Drucks 528, Leone Runge 526, Viv Hilger 203-522, Eleanor Breaker 520, Betty Boegh 519, Kathy Sodermark 514, Barbara Sorensen, 502 and Cora Smarzynski 500.

Monty finished with a 588 series, DeRoche had a 226 game and Beyer rolled 225. Carl Babbitts notched a 580 threesome.

The Owl Tavern North and Owl Tavern South teams are tied for first place with 14-4 records. They lead by three games.

Menasha JVs Fall to Kaukauna Squad 20-6

Ghosts Lead 13-0 at Halftime; Jays Tally On Block-to-Heil Pass in Fourth Quarter

Menasha — Kaukauna moved to a 2-touchdown lead at halftime and went on to defeat the Menasha jayvees 20-6 Monday afternoon at Butte des Morts field.

The loss evened Menasha's record at 2-2. It closes against Neenah next Monday. Kaukauna beat Neenah earlier in the season.

The Ghosts were blanked in the first quarter but had a touchdown pass nullified by a backfield in motion penalty. They gained possession when Menasha missed a first down by less than a yard on its 40.

After the penalty, the Ghosts continued their march and scored on the first play of the second period. Fullback Bill Jirikowic went over from the 3-yard line and Jim Schuman booted the extra point.

Later in the frame, the Ghosts recovered a Menasha fumble on the Bluejay 45. Making a couple of first downs enroute, Steve Blair went over from the 5-yard line. Schuman's extra point was blocked by Bill Stuck.

Touchdown Called Back
The Ghosts made their final touchdown in the third period with quarterback Ron DeBroux tallying from the 1-foot line. He had put the ball in position on the previous play with a 20-yard run. Schuman made his second conversion in three attempts.

The Ghosts lost another touchdown in the third period when a 55-yard pass play was called back because of a clipping penalty.

Menasha tallied midway in the fourth period on a 52-yard pass from Quarterback Jeff Bloch to end Tom Heil. Fritz Blohm's kick attempt was blocked.

The Jays lost a golden opportunity with a couple of minutes left to play when they gained possession on the Kaukauna 18 after the Ghosts got a bad pass from center on a punt attempt. The Jays, however, only could get to the 15 in four plays.

Crosby's preliminary hearing began last Thursday, when his wife, Patricia, testified they had been separated three months and that he had not supported the family.

Mrs. Crosby, 18, who lives with her parents of 644 Paris street, Menasha, herself faces sentencing on charges of carrying a concealed weapon Dec. 14 in Luchsinger's court. She was arrested Aug. 31 after a pistol she was carrying discharged in the Menasha police station. She pleaded guilty.

Menasha — Enrollment at Menasha Vocational school this semester totals 1,374, the highest so far and about 150 above the registration for the same period last year, says Director H. L. Sherman.

Sherman said the second semester enrollment, as in past years, probably will be larger than this term. Last spring's figure was 1,589.

The school is serving 94 apprentices — 37 in printing, 28 in plumbing, 14 millwrights and small numbers in other groups.

The commercial classes — shorthand, bookkeeping, typing and comptometry — are accommodating 95 students.

NHS Jayvees Record Win Over Kimberly '11'

Cop 36-0 Verdict; Schwerin Tallies Twice for Victors

Neenah — Neenah's junior varsity football squad evened its record at 1-1 by rolling over Kimberly 36-0 there Monday afternoon.

The Rockets, who bowed to Kaukauna 8-0 in their only other start three weeks ago, moved to a 20-0 halftime lead.

Leading the scoring parade was sophomore halfback Stu Schwerin, who tallied twice. He scored once on a short pass and run which covered 90 yards.

Neenah closes its brief 3-game schedule next Monday afternoon at Menasha.

Synonyms: Pretty, handsome, beautiful, beauteous, comely, charming, attractive, exquisite.

Word study: "Use a word three times and it is yours." Let us improve our vocabulary by mastering one word each day.

Today's word: impassioned; moved to a strong feeling; twister down. "His impassioned words brought tears to the track which is 126 yards in eyes of his listeners."

Men Involved In Riot at Teen Program

Kansas City—Men from 21 to 50 years of age caused much of the riotous disorder that led to the closing of a rock 'n' roll show Saturday night, police said.

A crowd of 12,300, mostly teenagers, was in Municipal auditorium when fist fights, popping firecrackers, yelling and milling of the crowd brought the police riot squad to the scene.

The show, advertised in the name of television star Dick Clark, was stopped. A dance scheduled to follow the show was canceled.

Police hustled the more belligerent patrons off to jail. Forty-nine were booked on such charges as peace disturbance and public drunkenness. Of that group, 45 are Negroes.

The 49 range from 17 to 50 years of age slightly more than half are 21 or older.

There were no serious injuries. Maj. John I. Lucas, district police commander, said he closed the show because "it looked to me like it was getting out of hand."

"I don't think the performers were to blame," Lucas added. "Some of the spectators were just getting carried away with the whole thing."

Some of them were obviously drinking. . . there had been a few fights and it looked as though there would be some more so I decided to tell everybody out. The show was almost over anyway."

New Idea for Diary Uses Sketches Instead of Words

BY CAPPY DICK

Boys and girls who like to draw can have fun keeping a wordless diary in which sketches, instead of words, record each day's fun. When the diary-keeper wants to know what he did on a certain day, he simply turns back to the proper page and looks at the pictures he drew there.

All you need is a pocket notebook and pen and ink. Stick-figures like those in the illustration are easy to draw. There should be one page in the diary for each day. Use the top half to draw a picture of what you did during the morning and mark that picture "A.M." Use the bottom half of the page to draw a picture of what you did in the afternoon and mark that picture "P.M." Usually one stick-figure will be enough for each picture; use it to illustrate the most important raked leaves the morning of thing you did in the morning Oct. 17 and played golf in the afternoon. Sometimes, of afternoon. He went hiking afterwards, you may want to er Sunday school on Oct. 18 make two pictures for each and played tennis that after-half day if you did more than noon. On Oct. 19 he studied one important thing. You will find it fun to see how many activities you can describe with the little stick-figures. For example, in the illustration above you can tell

Two sketches are made for each day.

Marshall Had Tough Task in Mapping Korean War Course

BY ELTON C. FAY

Washington — Some of the hardest decisions Gen. George C. Marshall had to make in a half century of military and official life came in his last job.

He was secretary of defense for a year, in the dark time of the Korean war.

It was his duty to recommend to the White House and the state department the way to fight that never completely popular and eventually victory-less war.

Marshall, President Truman and Sec. of State Dean Acheson, fearing the limited war might flare into global

MacArthur took his case to the public, and Truman fired him.

Marshall supported Truman. Still, the ouster of the hero of World war II in the Pacific was distressing to him. When Marshall testified before an investigating senate committee he expressed regret at having to say what he did. He said of MacArthur:

"He is a brother army officer, a man for whom I have had tremendous respect as to his military capabilities and military performance."

Here Marshall drew the line that he had drawn on occasions in World war II when he was army chief: The decisions of the top command must be the final and prevailing decisions.

There was no disagreement about the way the Korean war should be fought as between the president, the joint chiefs of staff and himself, Marshall declared. There was and continued to be a basic difference between the commander in Korea and Washington headquarters, the secretary said.

Marshall believed that MacArthur would have the United States carry the conflict from Korea to the Chinese mainland and "would have us accept the risk of involvement not only in an extension of the war with red China but an all-out war with the Soviet Union."

Against Nuclear War

As the war dragged on, there were calls in some quarters for the United States to use atomic bombs against red troops and bases. The argument that this could reduce American casualties was tempting.

Marshall, with his joint chiefs of staff, recommended against atomic weapon use, pointing to the danger of precipitating nuclear retaliation from the reds which could burst into World war III.

Marshall's long standing practice was to let the joint chiefs of staff make the military assessment of a situation, prepare the complete plans and recommendations and then hand them to him when all was ready.

To some with long government experience, this was entirely commendable practice.

To others with equal experience it suggested that Marshall was delegating too much authority, refusing to make workaday decisions.

Robert Lovett, who was deputy defense secretary under Marshall and then succeeded him as secretary, disagrees with the contention that Marshall shoved off responsibility.

Marshall, says Lovett, directed subordinates including the joint chiefs, to do the spadework, to staff the problem and to submit proposals.

Wouldn't Relax

"He waited until policy had been outlined and established firmly, then moved," Lovett says. "That is what a good commander does."

"If there was a fault in Gen. Marshall," Lovett adds, "it was the sense of duty magnified to the point where he abandoned rest and recuperation."

He continued to make periodic trips from his Leesburg, Va., home to Washington to serve as a member of a defense reorganization board, to handle matters of the American Battle Monuments commission, to attend meetings of the board of trustees of the National Geographic society. In 1953 he got up from a sickbed to go to Europe to accept award of the Nobel peace prize. The award was for the "Marshall plan" for Europe's recovery from World war II.

He came back from that long journey to the quiet life at Leesburg and at the Marshall's winter home at Pinehurst, N. C., age and illness began to tell.

However, he plugged away at winding up unfinished business. Marshall declined to write a book of memoirs.

He did help in putting together for a foundation a vast amount of documents and other material which recorded his official history. It included more than 40 hours of memoranda dictated by Marshall on to tape to help an official biographer, Dr. Forrest Pogue.

Until a year or two before his death, Marshall worked faithfully each summer in a small garden at his Leesburg home.

It was a quiet spot, where few people came to argue about current or past controversies. He could be alone to meditate, while leaning on the handle of a garden tool. He said:

To Your Good Health

Act Your Age, be Moderate In Exercise, Says Molner

By Joseph G. Molner, M. D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Am I flirting with an early grave? I am 42. I bowl, ski, play baseball, handball, golf, hunt, fish, swim, and spend long hours a week on horseback. I am six feet one, weigh 185. I smoke a pack of Dr. Molner and a half of non-filter cigarettes a day."

"I can and do outrun 90 per cent of our high school team, in wind sprints, in the football season—Old Man 42, D.B."

Well, sonny, I'll tell you. I used to be 42 myself, once. And it was only about a decade ago, at that.

Depends On Background

I know a fellow about as old as you who still plays baseball. I can't exactly remember his name, but it's either Ted Williams or Stan Musial.

Also a pitcher of a little bit ago named Satchel Paige, and a boxer named Archie Moore. Exactly how old these last two are, I couldn't say. And they won't.

Or, to get to a little different field, in my own city I know of at least two carpenters, one nov 78 and one a bit older than that, who do a mighty good job, and carry on active lives.

But all of these men—carpenters, baseball players and boxers—didn't start to be active when they were 40 or so. Neither did any of them try to burn the candle at both ends. They started active lives (I presume) when they were little boys. They lived active lives persistently through the 20's, 30's, 40's and bigger numbers.

Past Prime

In the 40's, Williams, Musial, and Moore (I presume) are about at the end of the time for them to be world champion athletes. Paige, who probably stretched the truth about his age, has passed over the hill as a pitcher. And one of the old carpenters I mentioned now says that he doesn't care for jobs that involve climbing 24-foot ladders.

To boil it all down, I would say that the man who, in his teens, 20's, and 30's, doesn't go in for exercise is an idiot to try to become an athlete in the 40's. He's asking for trouble.

The man who has "kept in training" all these years remains healthy by indulging in all the exercise that he truly enjoys.

Lope Along At 42
At 42, and active, you, sir, have come to the top of the hill. You can run down the other side of the hill, sprinting for all you are worth, and can expect to come to grief quickly. Or you can lope efficiently along, taking the downhill course at a reasonable angle, and stay healthy, happy and strong for decades.

The only thing I can quarrel with in your letter is the spirit with which you wrote it. I may be wrong—but here's how I interpret it: You are unduly proud of being so active at 42, and you want me to tell you to keep right on.

I won't do so. Keeping up with, or outrunning, the high school boys won't keep you at a vigorous 42 forever. Don't try to prove that you are better at 42 than they are at 17. You can do it, under pressure, for a short time longer. But that's all.

At 42, do, athletically, only what is physically pleasant for you. That's the way to a long, active, happy life. Trying to prove something by straining the last ounce of energy out of yourself is neither healthy, wise, nor pleasant. Don't grab a rocking chair. But don't expect your physical machinery to stand the strain it used to accept gladly 20 years ago.

For my new pamphlet, "The Pre-Menstrual Blues," write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5 cents in coins to cover handling.

City Nurse to Resign Office January, 1960

Lack of Clerical Assistance Listed as Reason for Leaving

Kaukauna — Mrs. Gertrude Nagel, city nurse, has notified the common council, the health officer and board of health she will resign her position effective Jan. 15, 1960.

In September the nurse, in a letter to the board of health and council, informed city officials she would resign within 30 days if stenographic help was not provided for her office. She stated she was unable to carry out health programs to her satisfaction as much of her time was spent in the office doing clerical work.

The letter of resignation states, the failure to add additional personnel for the public health nurse is the sole reason for leaving. She suggested the council begin looking for a replacement soon as public health nurses are at a premium.

Study Made
A study was made by the finance committee to ascertain whether the city stenographer could not do more of the nurse's clerical work thus freeing the nurse for other duties.

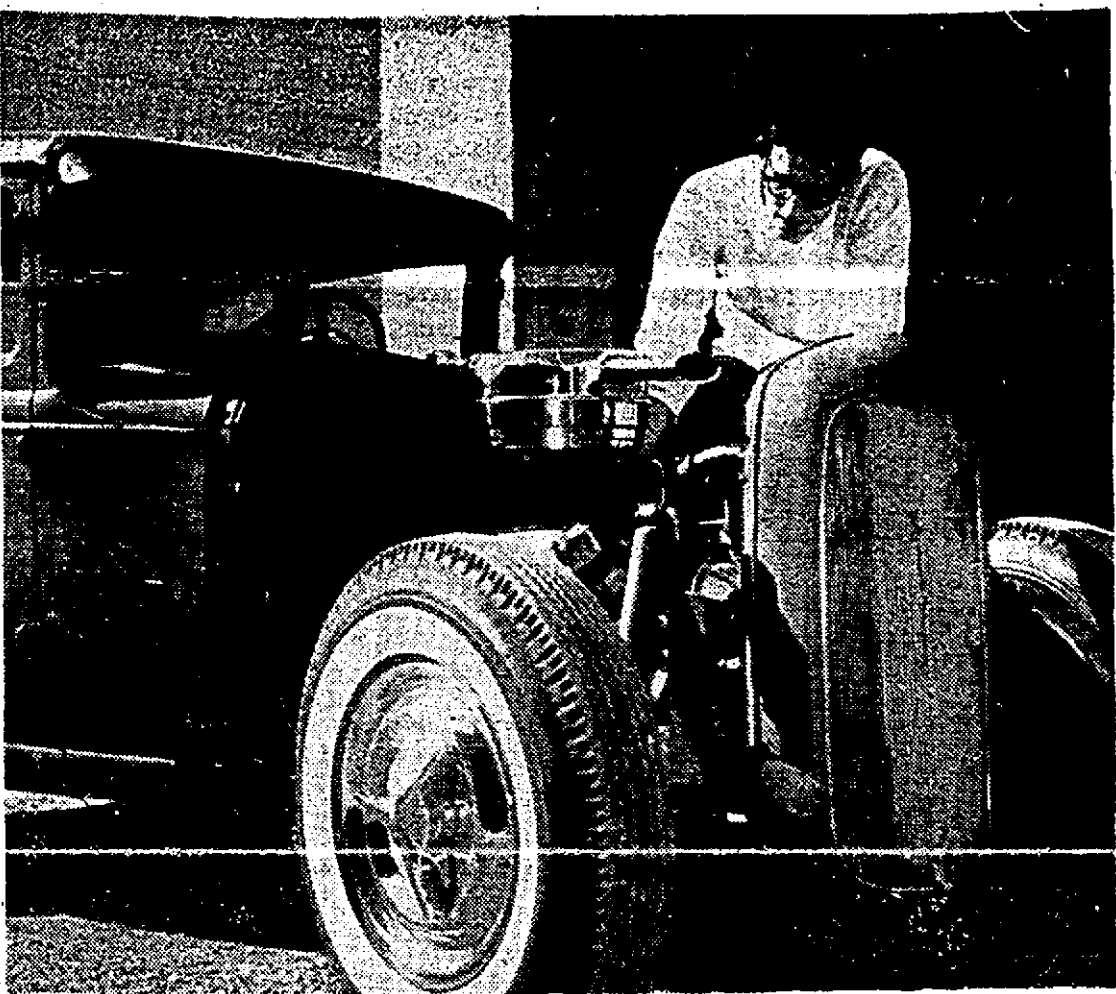

The stenographer reported, much of her work already consisted of keeping records for the nurse and she could not see where additional time could be spent without her other duties being affected.

The finance committee had no money set up in the 1959 budget for additional clerical help for any city office and refused to provide help due to the tightness of the budget. Joint meetings of the board of health and finance unit failed to solve the problem.

Mrs. Nagel has been city nurse since late in 1955.

Garage Permit Issued

Kaukauna — A building permit to construct a 2-car garage at an estimated cost of $600 was issued to Paul M. Micholic, 616 W. Ninth street,

Over 600 Hours of Labor and approximately $800 have gone into the building of this car. Dave Lindemuth works on the motor. The Milwaukee School of Engineering student started work in August, 1958, and hopes to have the vehicle ready for use by Christmas.

Youth Utilizes Many Models In Constructing Own Vehicle

Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Kaukauna — With the many models of standard and sport model cars on the market today, Dave Lindemuth, 19-year-old Kaukauna youth attending the Milwaukee School of Engineering was not satisfied with any and has started building his own.

The youth who is attending school under a scholarship from the Thilmany Pulp and Paper company started working on the car in August, 1958, and figures he still has several months work before the project is completed.

Lindemuth started his project with a 1931 Model-A Ford body for which he paid $25.

by Lothar Kemp, building inspector.

John Dolan, 512 Desnoyer street, was issued a permit to remodel his home and build a new concrete stoop at an estimated cost of $500.

The car was too high so using a hacksaw to cut through the metal the top was dropped three inches. A canvas top was removed and a metal plate welded in its place. The body was channeled over the frame eight inches thus further lowering the height of the vehicle.

Outside Help
A 1956 Chevrolet engine was secured and hydraulic brakes from a 1948 Ford utilized. The entire front end of the car was rebuilt and lowered, and the drive shaft had to be shortened 12 inches. The latter project was the only job Lindemuth did not undertake as it took precision work with equipment not available to him.

The gas tank was removed from the front end of the Model-A body and a truck gas tank installed in the trunk. Many parts of the engine have been chrome plated. The transmission is from a 1938

Ford, the clutch is from a 1946 Ford truck and the pressure plate from a 1950 Mercury. The rear end is from a 1948 Mercury, the grill from a 1932 Ford and for added complication the tail lights are from a Pontiac.

Shock Absorbers
Tubular shock absorbers were added. Plastic, fibre glass ad many other materials went into building the vehicle. Lindemuth estimates over 600 spare hours have been put into building the car and about $800. He has been helped by several friends who joined in forming a club known as the "Ghost Rodders."

One of the major expenses to date has been the tubeless white sidewall tires. Being without a license until the car is completed, Lindemuth is obliged to try it out in the family driveway and stay off city streets. He hopes to have it completed by Christmas to enable him to drive it back to school.

Lindemuth, although majoring in electrical engineering, has always been interested in hot-rods. He hopes someday

Thilco Joins in NMA Meeting

Management Club Officers to Vote For National Board

Kaukauna — N. F. Gerend, president of the Thilco Management club, and R. E. Kindler, vice president of the club, will attend the thirty-sixth national conference of the National Management association in Detroit Oct. 21 through 23.

The Thilco club, composed of foremen and supervisors of the Thilmany Pulp and Paper company, is an affiliate of the National Management association. Thilco delegates will represent their club Wednesday when 53 national directors will be elected to the NMA board.

After election, directors will name national officers from their midst. The meeting, according to NMA president, G. Eldon Tufts, is but an opening session for the educational part of the management development conference.

He noted, more than a dozen outstanding experts in the field of management development are appearing before some 1,200 members of the association.

Three Motorists Pay Traffic Fines

Kaukauna — Three motorists pleaded guilty to traffic violations when arraigned before Oscar T. Jahns, justice of the peace, Monday and all were fined.

Clifford Mathis, 22, 1401 Main avenue, Kaukauna, was fined $15 for failing to yield the right of way. His car was involved in a minor accident.

Urban G. Gerrits, 18, route 2, Kaukauna, was fined $10 for speeding. Richard J. Perock, 19, route 1, West DePere, was fined $15. Both exceeded limits by over 20 miles per hour.

to see a drag strip built in the area and expressed appreciation to officials at the Kaukauna School of Vocational and Adult education who let him use tools and equipment while working on the car.

Women's Group At Kimberly Plans Shower for Nuns

Kimberly — Final plans for a shower for the nuns at Holy Name of Jesus school were made at a meeting of the Christian Mothers society of the parish.

The affair has been set for Oct. 29 with the shower running from 2 to 4 p.m. Women of the society as well as other women in the parish may participate.

Members are currently staging a hard candy sale to help raise funds for charitable programs carried out throughout the year. The candy is in tin containers and suitable for Christmas use. Reports on the diocesan convention at Green Bay were given by Mrs. Joseph Gossens, Mrs. Norbert Schwab, Mrs. Cletus Dietzler and Mrs. Edward Dorn.

Twenty-six new members were welcomed by the Rev. Joseph Kools, parish pastor. Lunch and entertainment chairman was Mrs. Cornelius Boelhower. The Rev. Richard VerBust will speak on the Advent season and explain how to prepare a sick-room for a priest's visit at the Nov. 11 meeting.

Village K of C Dinner-Dance Set Saturday

Kimberly — The Father Vanden Borne Knights of Columbus will hold a combination Landing day and anniversary party Saturday at Holy Name of Jesus auditorium, Kimberly.

A cocktail hour will start at 6:30 p.m. with dinner at 7 p.m. The speaker will be the Rev. Thomas Mortell, assistant pastor at Holy Name. Toastmaster will be Daniel Burns, grand knight.

The hall will be decorated in Hawaiian theme with leis presented women as they arrive. The Hawaiian theme will be carried through in the music.

Larry McMahon is general chairman in charge of tickets and arrangements assisted by John Verbeten, Tom Lamers, James Kluge, Norman Reybrock, Clarence Wieseckel and Eugene Hietpas.

KHS Harriers Prepare for FVGC Conference Track Meet

Kaukauna — The Kaukauna High school cross country team, running a triangular meet this afternoon, will spend the balance of the week preparing for the conference meet to be run at the Fox Valley Golf club Saturday, according to Harold Kobin, coach.

Conference standings are based on this single meet rather than on a regular schedule of contests. Boys showing the best times in the four events prior to the conference run will likely represent Kaukauna, according to Kobin.

Teams will use seven runners with the first five finishers from each school figured in the standings. Teams expected to participate include Neenah, Two Rivers, Kimberly, Shawano, New London, Clintonville and Kaukauna.

Previous Record
The Ghost Harriers have defeated runners from Neenah and Kimberly on two occasions and Shawano once. The team holds a single win over Shawano and New London but twice fell to the Two Rivers crew. Clintonville will be unfamiliar foes.

Previous records mean little in such a run as the scoring can be well divided among the schools and the team with the most boys finishing early can take the title.

In an 8-team invitational at Two Rivers, Joe Mitchell of Kimberly finished first yet his team came in last while Two Rivers, winners, had its first man cross the line in fifth place.

The terrain at Fox Valley is ideal for cross country as spectators are able to see the runners around the entire course from two vantage points. In many cross country runs spectators fail to see the runners until they near the finish line.

Neil Davidson Hits 226 Line At Little Chute

Francis LeNoble and Stan Welhouse tied for high series with 567 counts.

Other honor counts included a 555 series by Dick Driessen and a 552 count by Davidson.

In the American Legion league Joe Reynebeau set the pace with a 588 series. Others with top series included Vern Freibel, 562; Jack Neisz, 554 and Bill Vanderloop, 555.

Arrested Saturday night for trying to remove a wire newsstand from in front of a supermarket were John Wilson, 17, 922 W. Grove street, Appleton, and Earl E. Fenner, 17, 801 Lynch avenue, Appleton.

Unsolicited Mail Can be Returned Free

Books, Greeting Cards Among Items Sent by Companies

What happens when you receive a package you didn't order in the mail?

There are several alternatives, according to Appleton Postmaster Francis Sumnicht.

People often receive such things as books, ties, boxes of greeting cards, religious items, license tags, and sheets of stamps with their mail deliveries. If they don't handle these articles properly they are exposing themselves to unnecessary expense.

Pay Return Postage
The easiest way of handling such articles is leaving them unopened and then sending them back with a postman. If an unsolicited package is marked "refused" and sent back with the postman, the recipient does not have to pay the postage. If the receiver thinks there is something in the package he might want to buy, he may open it and still not be forced to purchase it. Once the package is opened, the receiver has to pay postage if he wants it sent back. This could be slightly expensive if the article he wants sent back is a full set of encyclopedias. Sumnicht noted.

There is a case on record of a woman whose name was forged on an order for a set of books. When the book company asked for payment, the woman called the post office.

The advice given her is applicable to all cases of unsolicited material.

If a company demands payment or asks for the return of unsolicited material, the recipient may either pay for and keep the article, or he can ask the company to pay for return postage.

If there is no demand for payment he may pay for the postage and return the article, or store it for two years. This means he must not destroy or use the article for two years. The company could ask for payment during that period. After two years the recipient may dispose of the article.

Anyone with a question about handling unsolicited goods should call the post office, Sumnicht said.

He also urged anyone receiving obscene material through the mail to turn it in at the post office. Firms sending such material now can be prosecuted at the point of origin and in the area in which the material is received, Sumnicht said.

Hurt in Fall

Mrs. John Minsky, 108 E. McKinley street, was treated at a doctor's office after she fell in the 500 block of W. College avenue, about 10 a.m. Saturday. She received facial cuts.

Again Deny Rezoning on W. Prospect

Rezoning of 1400 W. Prospect avenue from residential to commercial and light manufacturing district was denied again Monday by the city planning commission.

Max Bauer, the property owner, said the land would be sold to a man who wants to build a supermarket. Twenty-one signers filed a remonstrance.

The rezoning plea was denied Aug. 17 by the commission and the request was withdrawn before the commission action was taken to council.

Other Action
In other planning commission action Monday, commissioners decided to hold a request for rezoning of 913 N. Division street from 2-family to multiple family district.

They will await a report from Ald. Loos on whether residents of the west side of Division street, Commercial to Winnebago, will go along with rezoning of the block to commercial and light manufacturing district.

Mayor Mitchell announced that the rezoning plea of Walter Klitzke, involving large acreage in the northwest corner of the city, will be aired before a joint meeting of the commission, industrial development committee and Appleton Industrial Development corporation at 10 a.m. next Monday. He wants some of his land removed from the industrial zone.

Curlers' Clubhouse

Soon to Become City Park Board Property

When the Appleton Curling club abandons its building in Pierce park, the building will revert to the park board.

This, the board has told club officials, is provided for in the contract under which the club obtained the park land for a club site.

Club officials had offered to sell the building to the board when a new clubhouse, planned for near Highway 41 between Appleton and Neenah, is complete.

LAYAWAYS

Buying Those Special Christmas gifts becomes an easy matter when it's done by the layaway method. Costs are spaced over a long period of time, yet the presents can be chosen early when Fox Cities stores are well stocked. Here a shopper checks in an electric blanket, a huge stuffed dog and other gifts to get a head start on her Christmas shopping.

Layaway Service a Boon To Christmas Shoppers

Eases Budget Worries, Avoids Hectic Last-Minute Purchases

Layaway buying is a service available to shoppers all year - round in Fox Cities stores, but at holiday time it's always at its peak.

For the shopper who takes advantage of layaway buying, the answer is obvious. It's the answer to pleasant, easy - on-the-budget Christmas shopping.

First, gifts may be selected early when merchandise is at peak availability. Shopping can be done more leisurely to make sure that each gift on the Christmas list is exactly the right one.

There's no last minute rush for presents when time grows short as holiday events get underway. The season can be in enjoyment, energy expended in family and community Christmas activities. For those who must have last-minute bustle of gift preparation, leave the wrapping until the season's underway. It serves the same purpose but with the presents carefully selected well ahead of time.

No Budget Blues

One of the biggest advantages of layaway shopping is its avoidance of those after-Christmas budget blues. Under the layaway plan, gifts are paid for by the time the eventful day arrives.

For those with Christmas savings, it means that gifts may be laid away with a token down payment and paid in full when the check arrives.

Another excellent feature of layaway service is that gifts can be kept hidden from inquisitive young fry in the anonymity of a store's warehouse. Johnny will get a real surprise when he sees his bike, just as every young

Landslide Forces Evacuation of 5 Frisco Homes

San Francisco — Heavy piling in the excavation for a 16-story apartment building snapped Sunday night and touched off a Nob Hill landslide that forced evacuation of five homes.

The slide carried away most of narrow, pedestrian-only Priest street and extended for 150 feet along a 40-foot high cut. Tons of dirt and rock tumbled into the excavation. The slide extended to within 4 feet of one home on the opposite of Priest street.

One utility pole toppled into the excavation, blacking out homes in the immediate area, and at least one burst gas main spewed fumes into the night air. Electric wires cracked in the street and a 30-foot geyser shot up from a ruptured water main.

The excavation is for a $10-million apartment building, to be called the Comstock. Weldon Richards, co-owner of the contracting firm, The Pacific company, said, "We'll do all we can for these people" whose homes were endangered.

It was the second slide within three weeks. The piling had been erected along the crumbling face of the cut to prevent further cave-ins.

Fire department officials advised the residents of the five homes to evacuate although they were not damaged seriously.

This Family Shopping expedition in a Fox Cities toy store shows without doubt what two young Appleton misses want Santa Claus to bring them come Christmas eve. Mrs. Noel Ford, 1328 W. Spring street, seems to be having as much fun as her two daughters, Amy, left, and Joni.

Plan Ahead for Holiday Mailing

Postmaster Makes Suggestions Helpful to Senders, Post Office

"Operation Christmas" is already underway at the Appleton post office, according to Postmaster Francis Sumnitch.

Materials for the Christmas rush have been ordered and the mail rate lists designated by the post office department as "Operation Christmas" have arrived.

This year Christmas mail will set a record of almost 5 million pieces of mail to be handled by the Appleton office. Several steps can be taken to aid post office workers in getting mail to its destination safely and on time, Sumnitch said.

Packages to be delivered by boat mail to foreign countries should be at the post office before Nov. 15 to insure delivery before Christmas.

Christmas cards should be addressed carefully and include the full name, street and number, city, zone and state.

Materials Available

Items are available at the post office that facilitate Christmas mailing for both the sender and post office employees. There are pamphlets on packaging and wrapping parcels and domestic postage rates and fees. Free labels reading "For Local Delivery" and "For Out Of Town Delivery" are available.

Stamps should be purchased by the sheet or roll rather than two or three at a time. Plastic containers that feed one stamp at a time are available for five cents and are designed for rolls of 100 4-cent stamps.

A small investment in heavy wrapping paper, sturdy empty cartons, strong cord, and pa-

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Needy Youngsters Will Enjoy Playthings Others Outgrew

Fixing up unused toys for distribution to less fortunate families is a satisfying family project in these weeks before Christmas.

Almost any family with children has dozens of toys around — toys which have fallen into disuse because of minor damage or because owners have outgrown them — and it frequently takes surprisingly little time and effort to put them back into like-new condition. Such toys can furnish many hours of enjoyment to those who might otherwise find Christmas a time when Santa visits other homes but not theirs. And a family that works together getting the toys ready will find the time and effort well rewarded in the satisfaction of doing something for others in the real Christmas spirit.

Repairing Plastic

Some toys may have had hard usage, but you will be surprised by what just a little time and work can do. Cracked plastic toys, often can be mended merely by pressing the edges together and applying the point of an electric soldering iron to the crack. The heat fuses the plastic, giving the toy a new lease on life.

Glue, nails or screws will strengthen weak joints of wooden toys. Plastic wood will fill cracks, holes or gauges. Build up the plastic wood a little higher than the surrounding surface, and flush and smooth when hard. At the same time, sand smooth any areas of chipped or flaking paint.

Removing Rust

When it comes to removing rust or chipped paint from metal toys, steel wool does a good job. An iron oxide or zinc dust type of primer should be applied to all bare metal surface that requires repainting. It isn't advisable to use red lead as a primer.

Interior enamel will provide a bright, durable finish on both wood and metal. When painting over old enamel, sand lightly before applying the new coat. A soft artist's brush is easiest to work with in painting small areas.

A word of caution. Children who are teething will chew on anything they can put in their mouths. For their toys it is important to use paints that are harmless if eaten. Nearly all interior enamels meet this requirement, but if you are in any doubt, consult your paint dealer.

When people first see this Christmas greeting, they take a quick second look to make sure that what they see is really true. Through an ingenious use of a small motor and a simplified set of linkage, the reindeer moves up and down, giving the impression of bounding over the snow countryside. At the same time twinkle lights placed in the cutout stars flash on and off creating an enchanting display.

To further enhance the attractiveness of this display, the pattern provides a complete alphabet to simplify lettering in the name or message with professional results assured.

The full size pattern simplifies cutting out and painting the reindeer and landscape. Being full size it is merely traced on the weatherproof panelboard the pattern specifies and painted in areas pattern suggests. A small 110-volt motor provides the power to pivot the reindeer. Both the motor and the necessary parts required are supplied in a kit. Step by step directions simplify installing the motor and assembling the necessary linkage.

This motion display is built from Pattern No. 764 which costs $3. The motor and linkage costs $9.50. If ordered together the total cost is $11.00. Cost for materials, including the weatherproof panelboard for background, frame, motor and linkage shouldn't exceed $20.00. Send requests to the Post-Crescent, P. O. Box 215, Pleasantville, N. Y.

Refrigerator Leaks Ammonia Gas From Broken Pipeline

Firemen, protecting themselves with gas masks, removed an ammonia-leaking refrigerator from the basement of 704 N. Leminwah street about 5:50 p.m. Sunday.

The resident, whose name was not reported, was removing the refrigerator from the basement when a pipeline broke, filling the house with the fumes, firemen said.

Read Bible, Truman Says

Dallas, Texas — Former President Harry S. Truman told worshippers at a suburban church Sunday they and their children would get a better understanding of government if they read the Bible more.

The constitution of the United States and the Declaration of Independence both are based on the Bible, and the good neighbor policy is drawn from the tenth chapter of the gospel according to St. Luke, Truman said.

His remarks at the church were occasioned by Laymen's Day, a national observance of the Methodist church.

British boarding party seized two other cases before the boat, the Calque Deniz, went down.

Three Turks—Reshat Yavuz, 25; Murat Gunduz, 28, and Oghouz Kotoglou, 31—are accused of attempting to smuggle arms into this British island colony, due to become an independent republic in a few months under a British-Greek-Turkish agreement. The judge ordered the three held for further investigation pending a hearing Oct. 27.

A dispatch from Valletta said the British destroyer Crossbow left Malta today to strengthen anti-smuggling patrols off Cyprus.

No Trick to Making Decorative Candles

With Halloween just ahead, Thanksgiving and Christmas just around the corner, it might be fun to set the whole family to making candles. There's no trick to the process, but it takes a little time, a bit of imagination and supplies from mother's kitchen. If the project becomes too enthusiastic, mom may have to buy an extra supply of paraffin, dye and perhaps a few decorative odds and ends.

However, jewels from old earrings, necklaces and such make handsome decorations. Added to glitter, sequins, original cut-outs or purchased stickers, a good supply of decorative materials may be stored in boxes.

Candle molds are easy to find in this age of paper, cans and cartons. Cardboard milk cartons make handsome big holiday candles. So do soup cans and frozen juice cans. For little fellows muffin cone paper cups or fluted paper muffin cups are some of the articles that may be used. Water soluble dye is best to use for coloring candles and it tends to form a residue in the candle molds. Therefore, the molds have to be discarded, which makes cartons, paper receptacles and cans a good mold choice.

Other supplies to gather together include paraffin (the kind used for canning); a double boiler or coffee can and pan that serves the same purpose and can be thrown away after using; spoons or stirrers; adhesive or cellophane tape; heavy cord for the wicks; pencil, scissors, glue and bright decorative trimming.

To Make Wicks

There's a bit of know-how to making wicks that stay in the candle properly. For large candles, a hole is made in the center of the bottom of a milk carton. Try to keep the hole no larger than the cord-wick that goes through it.

The string or cord for the wick is cut an inch longer than the depth of the mold. The wick is inserted through the hole in the bottom of the mold, then it's tied securely around a pencil. Presto, the wick is anchored and won't float up in the paraffin.

To keep the paraffin from leaking out, adhesive tape or cellophane goes over the tied pencil above the hole, then with a little melted paraffin the area is sealed off. Let the paraffin harden before filling the molds.

In smaller candles, the wick cord is dipped in hot, colored paraffin, then set aside to dry and harden for later use. These stiffened wicks are pushed into the molded candles just as the wax begins to thicken.

Of course, the paraffin is melted by double boiler method, then colored with the addition of prepared dye by stirring the liquid wax thoroughly as the dye is poured into it. Important to know are the

This Little Christmas Tree never saw a forest, or real snow, either. The golden lacy cones are made of gold paper doilies and filled with sweets. The young decorator heaps plastic boughs with suds-snow that will retain its natural look and lustre through the holiday season. Such an artificial tree may be the answer to those living in small apartments or as an extra tree in the family room or a child's bedroom.

Vice-Admiral Hanson Dies

San Diego, Calif. — Vice Adm. Edward W. Hanson, 70, who commanded the cruiser Indianapolis in the Pacific in the early days of World war II and later headed a cruiser division, died suddenly Sunday.

He collapsed on a sidewalk. Cause of death has not been determined.

He commanded the 14th naval district in Hawaii from 1946 to 1949 and later commanded the 15th naval district, in the Panama Canal zone, before retiring in 1951. He won the Navy Cross and the Legion of Merit for his services in World war II. Surviving is his wife, Nina.

paint a child's initial on the side of the hardened candle in glue, then blow bright glitter on the glue to make a gay, personalized initial.

basic measurements needed for candle making, but colors may be experimented with as the candlemakers go along. Since dyes tend to deepen in color as paraffin hardens, light colors work better than dark ones.

It takes about two teaspoons of dye to color one pound of paraffin. As a rule of thumb for molds from common articles here are approximate proportions: One pound of wax makes three frozen juice can candles; one and one-half pounds is needed for a quart-size milk carton mold; one and one-half pounds makes eight muffin tin sized candles; and one pound of paraffin makes five star-shaped candles hardened in gelatin molds.

Orange wax candles, decorated all around with flying black witches on a broomstick, may be made for Halloween. If decorations are hand-painted, dip the brush on a bar of soap, then into poster paint, to put on the creative designs.

For the less talented, cut-outs from colorful ads or fancy designs cut from aluminum foil, seasonal stickers may be used as decorations. A birthday party idea is to

Trip to Model Railroad Club Proves Young Fry Enthusiasm for Trains

BY LILLIAN MACKESY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Since the day the first Iron Horse chugged its way westward into history, the American male has been entranced with railroading.

There's not a boy alive who doesn't yearn for a train of his very own. If seeing is believing, Fox Cities parents should take their young, middle-sized and big sons down to the old Chicago and North Western depot in the "flats," at 723 S. Oneida street.

Serious Hobby
Inside the faded red building, the Paper Valley Model Railroad club holds sway with dedicated devotion to real railroading. Every third Friday night of the month, the club holds open house to give the public a chance to enjoy the busy scene.

At first glance, it may seem as if grown men were having an evening of great fun. They are, indeed, but it's more than that. Their intricate, 2-division railroad layout is a serious venture of men with a railroading hobby. Their trains are not toys and the work of maintaining their road is a prodigious one, involving many hours of fixing track, rebuilding a bank, laying new miniature ties or repairing switches.

Built to scale, one-fourth inch to a foot, the railroad has dedicated devotion to real railroading. Every third Friday night of the month, the club holds open house to give the public a chance to enjoy the busy scene.

curved terrain, landscaped and complete with buildings, stations, a round house terminal and countryside scenes. It's a realistic railroad operation. When passenger, freight or special trains ride the rails, they are dispatched out of various yards with a destination. The trains follow a specified route and have to arrive at their destination on schedule.

Busy Activity

There's much to watch as seven club members operate the road. A colorful new circus train may be making its way around the steep curve above a highway on which a trans-continental bus is traveling. The 20-car ore train, each scooped car filled to the brim, may be rattling over a bridge while a log-laden train travels the underpass route. A passenger with domed observation cars slides by the miniature Golden Spike marker on one of the lower roads, while a new diesel or gas electric engine is maneuvered out of the roundhouse for service to a waiting oil tanker train. Various trains pull in and out of the big Union station; work trains are being jockeyed into position in one of the yards.

This of course is a hobby for grown-ups, serious about their interest in railroading. But the same interest is in the younger fry who watch the operation is absorbed fascination.

For Young Railroaders
For them, there are trains of the "tinplate" type, as model railroaders call commercial train sets. On a specially prepared board, in a basement room or even on living room floor, younger railroaders can enjoy the thrill of "engineering" a train.

There are many types of trains available in Fox Cities stores for Christmas giving. There are simplified wood models for the pre-school set, who couple a vivid imagination with the motion of a colorful train as it whizzes across floor or rug in a make-believe setting.

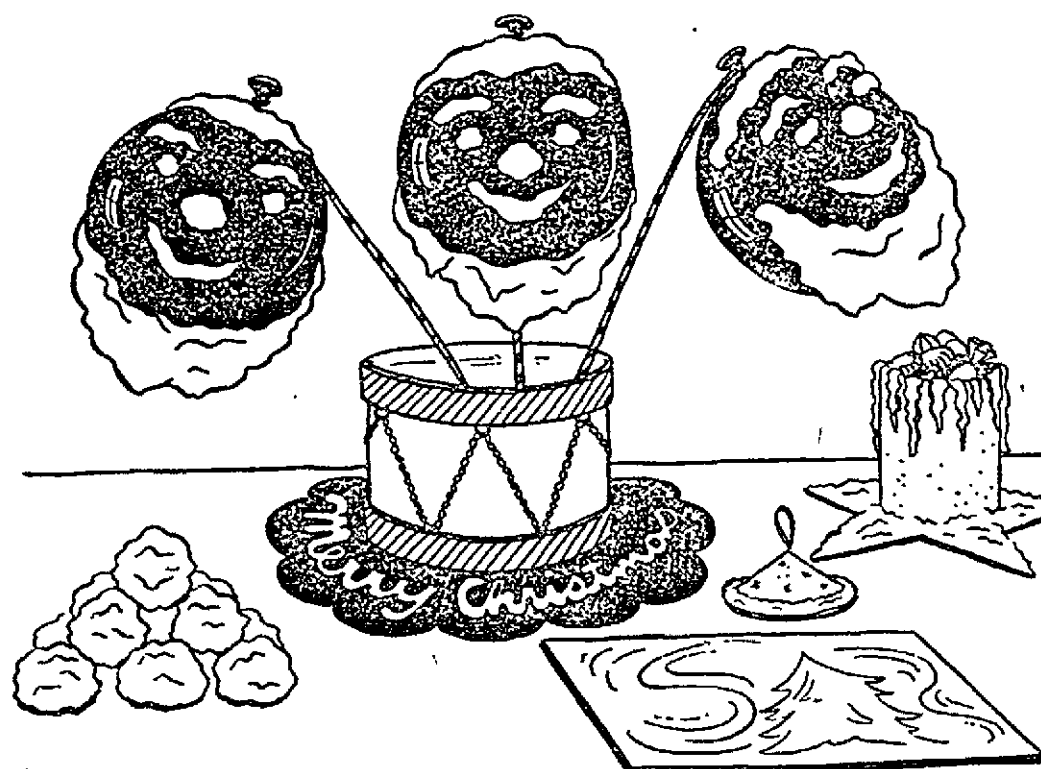

For the grade schooler and older boy, there are electric trains that can be switched as they travel their track routes. Passengers, freights, work cars pulled by sleek streamlined diesels, are among the varieties available. Some cars carry cattle, others are refrigerator cars; some are equipped to load and unload milk cans at a dairy depot.

Once a youngster has a train, his Christmas presents become a continuous thing, as a new car or other railroad item is added to his collection. As he becomes more interested, he can begin to build his road with scenery, billboards, highway buildings, roadside farms . . . they are all available in Fox Cities stores for the young railroader.

Another word to the wise, if junior gets a train for Christmas, better include pop in the deal. Get something for him, too, because he'll become a kid again as he operates his son's train with as much enthusiasm as junior himself.

Here is a Table Setting for a children's party so simple to make the children can help. Designed primarily for Christmas, it could be used at Thanksgiving, Halloween, or for any birthday party. Here, a stack of artificial non-meltable snowballs are made from soap or detergent suds mixed with a small amount of water. The suds-snow also forms the beards and hair of the balloon Santa Claus heads, as well as the trim for finger-painted table mat and a candy-filled milk carton "house." A round hat box serves as the drum, but it could just as easily be a pumpkin—with the balloons suds-trimmed with spooky Halloween faces.

Woman Protests Rezoning Request

Mrs. Jennie Stark, 909 E. Eldorado street, has filed a protest with the city against rezoning of the northeast corner of Charlotte street and Randall avenue.

She owns two nearby lots which, she says in a letter, will decrease in value if the proposed rezoning goes through.

The city planning commission is recommending rezoning from residential to multiple family district. A public hearing is scheduled before the city council at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

5 of Family Killed in Flaming Crash

Palm Springs, Calif. — Five members of one family were killed Monday in a flaming crash on U. S. Highway 99, 10 miles north of Palm Springs.

A young man, his sister and two of her children were flung from their auto as it careened over a highway divider after blowing a tire. The woman's month-old son was burned to death when the car smashed head-on into another and burst into flames.

Killed were John Clifford Beall, 20, of El Monte, Calif.; his sister, Mrs. Ethel May John, 33, of Brawley, Calif.; and her children, Karen Ann, 8, Barbara Lynn, 3, and James, the infant.

Riverside County Dep. Coroner Robert Drake said Beall was apparently driving.

Kennedy Says Work to Preserve Peace Aids Enslaved Nations

Milwaukee — Sen. John F. Kennedy, D-Mass., says that by working to preserve world peace America can help nations enslaved behind the Iron Curtain to keep the limited freedom they have gained.

"No matter how bitter some feeling may be or how confident some persons are of a victorious war for liberation, freedom behind the Iron Curtain and world peace are actually inextricably linked," said Kennedy.

Kennedy also told his audience at a testimonial dinner Saturday night for Rep. Clement Zablocki, D-Milwaukee, that liberalized U.S. trade policies might also help to wean the Iron Curtain nations away from Russia.

These Days
Writer Says Unionizing Police Would Hinder Law Enforcement

BY GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

New York — For the sake of argument, let us say that all public servants, police, firemen, school teachers, street cleaners, are underpaid.

Then the argument as to unionization need not center on the question of wages, which are always unsatisfactory, but on unionization per se. The various police organizations are supposed to be benevolent and are supposed to be voluntary, but when, as in New York, an effort is made to establish a check-off for a benevolent association, then the union is not far away because its treasury will be attractive if not to Jimmy Hoffa then to racketeers. The check-off not only produces unionization but the closed shop.

The check-off is a vicious institution, first used in Germany and coming to the United States during the New Deal. It is a device by which the employer deducts union dues and other amounts from the wages of a worker, thus making payments involuntary. To the union, it guarantees that its members will pay their dues and not cheat, but in the broader philosophy of American freedom, it withholds from the individual freedom of choice. He cannot say that he will or will not pay. He cannot postpone payment. He may not divert the funds for other purposes such as, for instance, buying food or clothes. He may not owe the money. The dues are a second lien on his wages, the first lien being taxes.

Collector For Union

The employer becomes a collector for the union. Is that the function of a municipality, particularly as regards the police force? Suppose a police union did fall into the hands of such racketeers as the McClellan committee exposed, is it the obligation of a municipality to feed its funds to such crooks?

Politicians think in terms of prospective votes. The Patrolmen's Benevolent association of New York, for instance, claims over 22,000 members, which is a lot of direct and family votes. Also at $1.50 a month for dues, checked off by the city, this would mean an income of about $33,000 a month for the union, which could develop into a fat reservoir into which politicians could dip for campaign funds. It is $396,000 a year for dues alone, not including initiation fees as well as other assessments.

Instead of the police being a disciplined body, obeying orders and maintaining the peace and law of the city, it would become subject to the will of the very criminal elements it exists to suppress. The principal unionizer of police forces in the United States is the Teamsters union which has been expelled by the AFL-

CIO and whose head, Jimmy Hoffa, has been held before the American people as unfit by the McClellan committee.

Discipline Needed

To oppose the unionization of the police is not to be opposed to the principle of trade unionism. It would rather be like unionizing the army, the navy and the air force. These are disciplinary and disciplined organizations. A local police force differs from the national defense forces in that its membership is voluntary. No one is forced to become a policeman. But once he joins, he should be under the most severe discipline. He is a man with a legalized gun. That gun should be used for law and order not at the dictates of an honest or dishonest union officer who is in no manner responsible to any authority but who could veto the instructions of the authorities.

Large cities always are centers of criminal elements. During recent years, there has been an increase, particularly among juvenile criminals. More police are required; the best grade of young man needs to be recruited for police work; he must be given decent pay and every advantage possible to keep him in police work as a life career. No outside organization in control of the police is tolerable, because discipline must not be diluted. Rigid discipline is necessary if crime is to be put down.

The major reason for the strength and competence of the FBI is that it is disciplined throughout, so tightly disciplined that there is never any question as to an individual agent's responsibility and duty. Other departments of municipal activity may be unionized without peril, but it is always an uphill fight to keep the politicians and the racketeers away from the police. (Copyright, 1959)

Inland Daily Press Group Picks Officers

Chicago — (AP) — Loring C. Merwin, publisher of the Bloomington Pantagraph, was named president of the Inland Daily Press association Monday at its annual meeting.

Richard H. Blackledge, publisher of the Kokomo, Ind., Tribune, was named vice president.

John P. Harris, the retiring Inland president who publishes the Hutchinson, Kan., News, was named to the board of directors for 1 year, and expected to become chairman of the board.

Elected to the board for 3-year terms were Clyde E. Moffitt, publisher of the Fort Collins, Colo., Coloradoan, and Henry J. Schmitt, editor and publisher, Aberdeen, S. D., America-News.

(Representing the Post-Crescent at the meeting are Victor I. Minahan, executive vice president and editor; Maurice E. Cartier, treasurer and business manager; and Glenn H. Arthur, director of advertising.)

Church of England Discredits Story 7 Centuries Old

Lincoln, England — (AP) — The Church of England is officially discrediting the 7-century-old legend of "Little St. Hugh."

According to the legend Jews crucified an 8-year-old boy in 1255 as an insult to Jesus Christ. Many Jews were arrested and executed.

The boy's body was buried in Lincoln cathedral and a shrine erected.

"Little St. Hugh" became regarded as a Christian martyr. The legend was the subject of ballads and was mentioned in Chaucer.

A framed notice above the tomb recounted the story.

Now the notice has been taken down.

Church officials now describe "Little St. Hugh" as "merely a child buried in the cathedral" without special significance.

A new notice will bear this inscription: "Trumped up stories of 'ritual murders' of Christian boys by Jewish communities were common throughout Europe during the Middle Ages and much later.

"These fictions cost many Jews their lives. Lincoln has its own legend and the alleged victim was buried in the cathedral.

Pro-management forces, led by President Carl F. Granrud, charge the squabble is an attempted power grab of a prosperous, growing institution.

Anti-management forces, led by two directors who also are former executives of the society, say Granrud rules by "fear and favor," and charge him with abuse of executive power. Three other directors side with the dissidents, creating a seven to five split on the 12-man board.

Gordon Bubolz, president of the Home Mutual Insurance company, Appleton, is a member of the board of directors and has voted with the management bloc. He has been unavailable for comment and will be out of the city visiting his company branch offices until the convention is held Oct. 28.

The issue will come to a head at the society's quadrennial convention to elect new directors. Terms of four directors expire.

Three Hurt As Car, Truck Collide on 47

Three persons were slightly hurt in a 2-car crash about 4:45 p. m. Monday on Highway 47 about three miles north of Highway 41.

A car driven by Frank J. Wisniewski, 64, route 2, Seymour, braked for a preceding car and skidded into the path of a truck driven by Arthur Borsche, 43, of 221 N. Outagamie street. Wisniewski told police that the car seemed to pull to the left. The car in front of Wisniewski was not involved in the accident.

Taken to Appleton Memorial hospital by Larry's ambulance were Wisniewski's passengers with possible broken ribs, Mrs. Bernice Wisniewski, 50, and Mrs. Sadie Ward, 65, route 2, Pulaski. Mrs. Ward also had a possible broken pelvis. Also treated at the hospital was Borsche's passenger, Donald Borsche, 24, of 912 E. Frances street, with back injuries and a cut right hand.

Eleanor Rietz, 43, of 324 First court, Menasha, escaped injury Sunday night when her car left County Trunk ZZ about a mile east of County Trunk Z and overturned. County police said the west-bound car traveled 39 feet on the shoulder, hit a mailbox, skidded across the road and rolled over for 180 feet. The woman said she was blinded by the lights of an oncoming car.

Man's Leg Broken In Tavern Fight

Edward Olanske, 33, of 870 Third street, Menasha, was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital by Larry's ambulance about 12:45 a. m. today after he suffered a broken leg in a fight at Russ's bar, 619 W. College avenue.

Police were called to the tavern by Russell Wilcox, owner, about 12:30 a. m. They found Olanske on the floor and Kenneth Daul, age and address unknown, cut about the ear and head.

Patrons said there had been several disturbances during the evening.

No charges have been made.

Hurt in Fall

Mrs. Haukie Ellerman, route 1, Neenah, was taken to Theda Clark hospital by Larry's ambulance after she slipped and broke her hip about 2 p. m. Monday.

Electronics Rise In Moderate Trade On N. Y. Exchange

New York—(AP)—Electronics and selected issues were lively and higher as blue chips allowed in an irregular stock market early this afternoon. Turnover was moderate.

Gains and losses of fractions to about a point dotted the list of key stocks which comprise the market averages. Gains of 2 or 3 points were posted by some of the "glamor" issues.

The pivotal industrials and rails moved uncertainly as the government's move for an injunction to halt the steel strike under a Taft-Hartley injunction was awaited.

The market was mixed in an active opening. An attempt at a rally erased some of the initial losses of steels but there was no carry-through to the upward drive. The steels were mixed while rails maintained a slight edge to the upside.

Most motors were higher. Chemicals and rubbers drifted off. Oils, aircrafts and nonferrous metals were spotted.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at $223.60 with the industrials down 20 cents, the rails up 40 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.

Corporate bonds were irregular.

U. S. government bonds rose in a fair activity over the counter.

Electronics Rise In Moderate Trade On N. Y. Exchange

New York—(AP)—Electronics and selected issues were lively and higher as blue chips allowed in an irregular stock market early this afternoon. Turnover was moderate.

Gains and losses of fractions to about a point dotted the list of key stocks which comprise the market averages. Gains of 2 or 3 points were posted by some of the "glamor" issues.

The pivotal industrials and rails moved uncertainly as the government's move for an injunction to halt the steel strike under a Taft-Hartley injunction was awaited.

The market was mixed in an active opening. An attempt at a rally erased some of the initial losses of steels but there was no carry-through to the upward drive. The steels were mixed while rails maintained a slight edge to the upside.

Most motors were higher. Chemicals and rubbers drifted off. Oils, aircrafts and nonferrous metals were spotted.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was unchanged at $223.60 with the industrials down 20 cents, the rails up 40 cents and the utilities up 10 cents.

Corporate bonds were irregular.

U. S. government bonds rose in a fair activity over the counter.

Recapture of Inmate Aided By Residents

Officials Express Thanks for Aid in Nabbing Lankford

Post-Crescent News Service

Green Bay — Officials of the Wisconsin State Reformatory today expressed gratitude to persons who assisted in Monday's recapture of John Lankford, 19-year-old inmate who scaled the institution's wall with a bedsheet "rope" on the previous night. Lankford was taken back into custody at 12:45 Monday afternoon along the East river south of Hastings street in Allouez a few blocks south of the Green Bay limits. Two telephone calls by Allouez housewives were instrumental after reformatory officials and guards and police of Brown county, Green Bay, and De Pere combed the area.

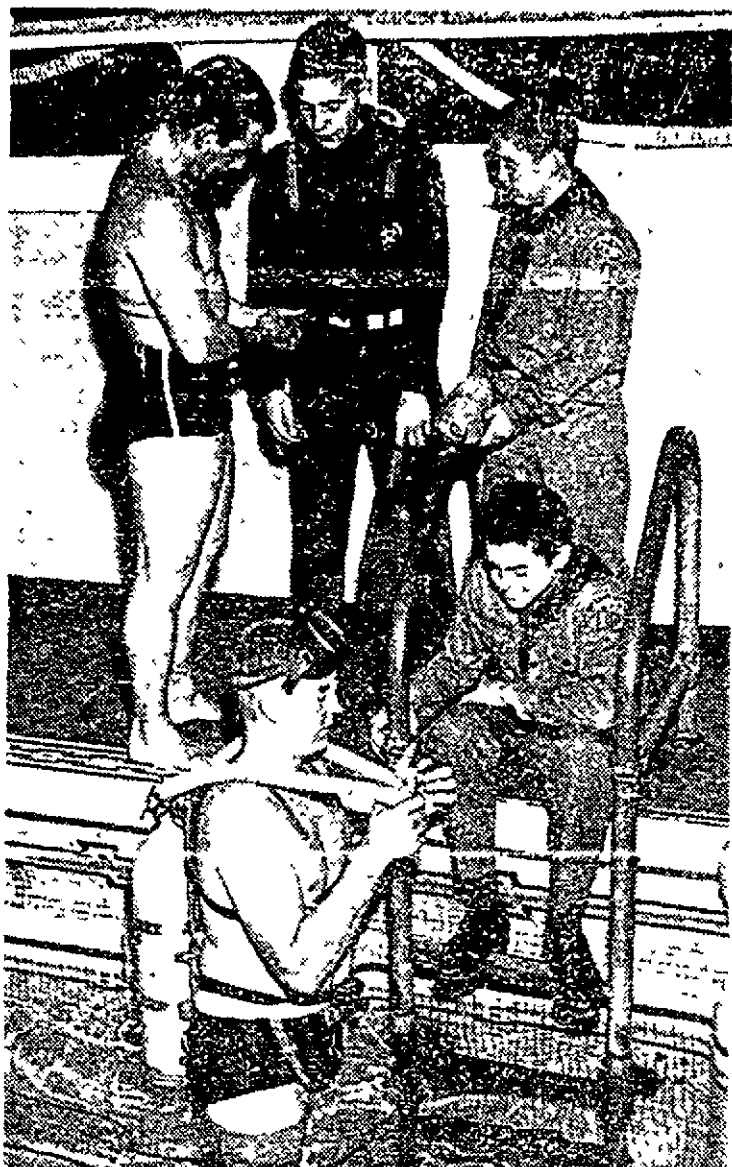

Reformatory Supt. M. A. Skaff praised "the residents' cooperation which led to the quick capture."

Night-Long Search
The officials reported also that no serious injuries were reported to personnel of the combined forces either in closing in on the escapee around mid-day Monday or during the night-long search of the area after Lankford was discovered missing from his dormitory at Sunday's 9 p.m. check.

Assistant Supt. Norman Nuss, who was walking on the south side of the tracks, spotted Lankford in a clump of brush near the East river. Nuss fired two warning shots into the air and Lankford scurried under the railroad bridge but emerged on the north side where Van Caster was ready for him.

Though the youth himself still has not said so, officials believe that he spent most of Sunday night and Monday morning in the basement of the Wesley M. Schreiner residence, 217 Derby lane, about a mile and a half north of the reformatory.

It was Mrs. Schreiner's call after Lankford jumped out at her with a screwdriver at 11:45 a. m. that turned the search to the neighborhood area.

Trucker Fined $15 for License Overload

Two truckers were charged with carrying loads in excess of the license authority when arraigned Monday in municipal court.

Earl Suprise, 53, route 1, Shioclon, was fined $15 for a 12,300-pound license overload. Willard C. Rohloff, 34, route 1, Fremont, forfeited $13.95 for a 4,940-pound overload.

the Allouez-Green Bay area continued for nearly an hour before a call from Mrs. Harris M. Cullen, 1342 Hastings street, that the youth was, walking on the tracks behind her home ultimately resulting in his recapture.

Jews Celebrate Thanksgiving

Succoth, Feast of The Tabernacles, Began Friday

Succoth, the Jewish feast of tabernacles, began Friday evening. The week long festival of thanksgiving marked the gathering of the harvest in Biblical days.

According to Rabbi G. Silverstein, the succoth was a wooden hut used as a temporary shelter while the Hebrews wandered as they sought the promised land. It was easily taken down and transported during the harvest season and was probably the world's first prefabricated dwelling.

During this week, the farmers brought their first crops to the ancient temple in Jerusalem. The holiday ends with Shemini Atzereth, a period of rejoicing as the law is read. Readings are taken from the five books of Moses and the beginning of Genesis. Shemini Atzereth begins Friday.

Board Avoids Decision on Fence For Golf Course

The park board, in submitting its 1960 budget request to the city council, avoided a decision on the controversial fencing of the western boundary of Reid Municipal Golf course.

Instead, it asks simply that the council's budget committee consider and decide the matter. Some 2,702 feet of 6-foot-high cyclone fence would cost about $10,000, the board estimated.

More than 200 golfers have petitioned for the fence and 43 residents of Carpenter, Maple and East streets have notified the city of their opposition.

Three aldermen, members of the budget committee, have indicated they will oppose appropriation of money for the fence.

THE REFORMATION was NOT a REVOLT or UPRISING against legitimate authority, but a DECLARATION of INDEPENDENCE founded and guaranteed in GOD'S HOLY and ETERNAL WORD; a DECLARATION bringing FREEDOM to the ENSNARED SOULS of men.

THE AUGUSTIAN MONK of the 16th century, MARTIN LUTHER, like ST. PAUL, had ONE PASSION, to SUMMON SINNERS to CHRIST JESUS as the ONE and ONLY MEDIATOR between GOD and FALLEN MAN, (I Timothy 2:5,6), AND the ONLY SAVIOR of the WORLD. (Acts 4:12). — "SPEAKING THE TRUTH IN LOVE." — Ephesians 4:15.
